Southern Crossings Daniel Cross Turner, 2012-08-30 Daniel Cross Turner has made a key contribution to the critical study and appreciation of the diverse field of contemporary Southern poetics Southern Crossings crosses a gulf in contemporary poetry criticism while using the idea or ideas many and contrary of Southernness to appraise poetries created from the profuse tangled histories of the region Turner's close readings are dynamic even lyrical He offers a new understanding of rhythm's central place in contemporary poetry while considering the work of fifteen poets. Through his focus on varied yet interwoven forms of cultural memory, Turner also shows that memory is not in fact past. The way we remember has as much to say about our present as our past; memory is living, shifting, culturally formed and framed. This is a valuable and important book that entwines new visions of poetic forms with forms of regional remembrance and identity.

Natasha Trethewey, Pulitzer Prize winner and author of Native Guard, Poems Offering new perspectives on a diversity of recent and still practicing southern poets from Robert Penn Warren and James Dickey to Betty Adcock, Charles Wright, Yusef Komunyakaa, Natasha Trethewey and others, this study brilliantly illustrates poetry's value as a genre well suited to investigating historical conditions and the ways in which they are culturally assimilated and remembered.

Daniel Cross Turner sets the stage for his wide-ranging explorations with an introductory discussion of the famous Fugitive poets John Crowe Ransom, Allen Tate and Donald Davidson and their vision of a constant southernness that included an emphasis on community and kinship, remembrance of the Civil War and its glorified pathos of defeat and a distinctively southern white voice. Combining poetic theory with memory studies, he then shows how later poets with their own unique forms of cultural remembrance have reimagined and critiqued the idealized view of the South offered by the Fugitives. This more recent work reflects not just trauma and nostalgia but makes equally trenchant uses of the past, including historiophoty, the recording of history through visual images and countermemory, resistant strains of cultural memory that disrupt official historical accounts. As Turner demonstrates, the range of poetries produced within and about the American South from the 1950s to the present helps us to recalibrate theories of collective remembrance on regional, national and even transnational levels. With its array of new insights on poets of considerable reputation, six of the writers discussed here have won at least one Pulitzer Prize for poetry. Southern Crossings makes a signal contribution to the study of not only modern poetics and literary theory but also of the U.S. South and its place in the larger world.

Daniel Cross Turner is an assistant professor of English at Coastal Carolina University. His articles, which focus on regional definition in national and global contexts and on aesthetic forms, potential to record historical transitions, appear in edited collections as well as journals including Genre, Mosaic, the Southern Literary Journal, the Southern Quarterly and the Mississippi Quarterly.

Chronicle of the Pulitzer Prizes for Poetry Heinz-D. Fischer, 2010-01-13 Joseph Pulitzer had not originally intended to award a prize for poetry. An initiative by the Poetry Society of America provided the initial impetus to establish the prize, first awarded in 1922. The supplement volume chronicles the whole history of how the awards for this category developed, giving an account based mainly on confidential jury protocols from the Pulitzer Prizes office at New York's Columbia University. This volume completes the series The Pulitzer Prize Archive.

Salvation Blues Rodney Jones, 2007 Rodney Jones has long been praised for his masterly storytelling and the bold southern voice he brings to his poetry. Salvation Blues celebrates the range and evolution of his work over a twenty-year period with one hundred selected poems, including twenty-four bold pieces published only in this collection. Revisiting

the Elegy in the Black Lives Matter Era Tiffany Austin, Sequoia Maner, Emily Rutter, Darlene Scott, 2019-12-09 Revisiting the Elegy in the Black Lives Matter Era is an edited collection of critical essays and poetry that investigates contemporary elegy within the black diaspora Scores of contemporary writers have turned to elegiac poetry and prose in order to militate against the white supremacist logic that has led to recent deaths of unarmed black men women and children This volume combines scholarly and creative understandings of the elegy in order to discern how mourning feeds our political awareness in this dystopian time as writers attempt to see hear and say something in relation to the bodies of the dead as well as to living readers Moreover this book provides a model for how to productively interweave theoretical and deeply personal accounts to encourage discussions about art and activism that transgress disciplinary boundaries as well as lines of race gender class and nation

Misery Prefigured J Allyn Rosser, 2001-04-09 In her second collection of poems J Allyn Rosser explores the human condition in all its gloriously valiant pathos Misery Prefigured dwells on our continual reinventions of self and world and the restless dynamic that vibrates between them Whether contemplating a failed marriage a visit from God or a pearl dropped into a bottle of Prell shampoo Rosser's wry yet impassioned eye looks hard for a habitable and abiding truth Alternating between deadpan and dead serious these poems are often darkly funny exposing the contradictions inherent in every desire Misery Prefigured is fueled by a cocky unsentimental determination to make some consolatory sense of what passes for reality

In the Truth Room Dana Roeser, 2008-10-31 Winner of the Morse Poetry Prize 2008 In the Truth Room suggests the shape and necessity of a life at once dramatically compelling and immediately believable one in which children are eating smores while watching a Fawlty Towers video and Volvos are skidding on ice and people are going to 12

step meetings museums are being visited and jobs and essential human relationships hang in the balance On the face of it the story at the center of the book seems archetypal a daughter in midlife making sense of ongoing experience in the wake of her mother's death while dealing with substantial crises and eventually undertaking what amounts to a pilgrimage The overarching theme is individual feminist contemporary how does a woman know herself apart from convention and duty Certainly the intense poems about the mother are key to this theme But In the Truth Room is less about one life than a fabric of interwoven lives four generations of family friends dear ones present and departed I would be hard pressed to name a poetry book that develops and displays affection for more characters or for that matter one that contains more life from the introduction by Rodney Jones
