Voices in the Wilderness Michael Meadows, 2000-12-30 This book examines race relations in Australia through various media representations over the past 200 years The early colonial press perpetuated the image of aboriginal people as framed by early explorers and stereotypes and assumptions still prevail Print and television news accounts of several key events in recent Australian history are compared and reveal how indigenous sources are excluded from stories about their affairs

Journalists wield extraordinary power in shaping the images of cultures and people so indigenous people like those in North America have turned away from mainstream media and have acquired their own means of cultural production through radio television and multimedia This study concludes with suggestions for addressing media practices to reconcile indigenous and non indigenous people This study will appeal to students and scholars studying mass media particularly journalism and public relations Australian history and sociology Television Toby Miller,2003 Eating Traditional Food Brigitte Sebastia,2016-11-18 Due to its centrality in human activities food is a meaningful object that necessarily participates in any cultural social and ideological construction and its qualification as traditional is a politically laden value This book demonstrates that traditionality as attributed to foods goes beyond the notions of heritage and authenticity under which it is commonly formulated Through a series of case studies from a global range of cultural and geographical areas the book explores a variety of contexts to reveal the complexity behind the attribution of the term traditional to food In particular the volume demonstrates that the definitions put forward by programmes such as TRUEFOOD and EuroFIR and subsequently adopted by organisations including FAO which have analysed the perception of traditional foods by individuals do not adequately reflect this complexity The concept of tradition being deeply ingrained culturally socially politically and ideologically traditional foods resist any single definition Chapters analyse the processes of valorisation instrumentalisation and reinvention at stake in the construction and representation of a food as traditional Overall the book offers fresh perspectives on topics including definition and regulation nationalism and identity and health and nutrition and will be of interest to students and researchers of many disciplines including anthropology sociology politics and cultural studies

Graber, 2020-08-15 Focusing on language and media in Asian Russia particularly in Buryat territories Mixed Messages engages debates about the role of minority media in society alternative visions of modernity and the impact of media on everyday language use Kathryn E Graber demonstrates that language and the production circulation and consumption of media are practices by which residents of the region perform and negotiate competing possible identities What languages should be used in newspapers magazines or radio and television broadcasts Who should produce them What kinds of publics are and are not possible through media How exactly do discourses move into out of and through the media to affect everyday social practices Mixed Messages addresses these questions through a rich ethnography of the Russian Federation s Buryat territories a multilingual and multiethnic region on the Mongolian border with a complex relationship to both Europe and Asia Mixed Messages shows that belonging in Asian Russia is a dynamic process that one cannot capture analytically by using straightforward categories of ethnolinguistic identity
