Measuring Writing: Recent Insights into Theory, Methodology and Practice Elke van Steendam,Marion Tillema,Gert Rijlaarsdam,Huub van den Bergh,2012-11-20 This volume provides a state of the art overview of theory methodology and practices in the assessment of writing The focus throughout the book is on the construct of writing and its assessment what constitutes writing ability and how can it be defined in various contexts This question cannot be answered without looking into the methodological question of how to validate and measure the construct of writing ability Throughout the book therefore discussions integrate theoretical and methodological issues A number of chapters discusses whether varying definitions and varying operationalizations of writing ability are needed in various contexts such as formative assessments versus summative assessments large scale assessments versus individual assessments different tasks different genres and different languages but also different age groups A range of rating methods is investigated and discussed in this book The ongoing debate on holistic versus analytic ratings and the different underlying conceptions of writing proficiency is a pertinent matter on which a number of chapters in this volume shed new light The matter is discussed and analyzed from various angles such as generalizability of judgements and usability in formative contexts Another fundamental debate concerns computer scoring of written products A nuanced discussion of its validity is presented in this volume Advances in Computerized Scoring of Complex Item Formats Brian E. Clauser,2014-07-16 This special issue was motivated by the move from research to operations for computerized delivery and scoring of complex constructed response items The four papers presented provide an overview of the state of the art for such applications The issue begins by describing the range of computer delivered formats and computerized scoring systems that are currently in use The remaining papers provide three views of validity in the context of computer delivered and scoring assessments It is hoped that together these articles will provide the reader with both an appreciation of the state of the art for computer automated scoring systems as well as a perspective on the issues that must be considered and the evidence that must be collected to produce automated scoring systems that allow for valid inference

Rearticulating Writing Assessment for Teaching and Learning

Brian Huot, 2003-04-01 Brian Huot's aim for this book is both ambitious and provocative He wants to reorient composition studies view of writing assessment To accomplish this he not only has to inspire the field to perceive assessment generally not the most appreciated area of study as deeply significant to theory and pedagogy he also has to counter some common misconceptions about the history of assessment in writing In Re Articulating Writing Assessment Huot advocates a new understanding a more optimistic and productive one than we have seen in composition for a very long time Assessment as Huot points out defines what is valued by a teacher or a society What isn't valued isn't assessed it tends to disappear from the curriculum The dark side of this truth is what many teachers find troubling about large scale assessments as standardized tests don't grant attention or merit to all they should Instead assessment has been used as an interested social mechanism for reinscribing current power relations and class systems

Transforming Writing Instruction in the Digital Age Thomas DeVere Wolsey, Dana L. Grisham, 2012-04-26 An innovative practical guide for middle and high school teachers this book is packed with specific ways that technology can help serve the goals of effective writing instruction. It provides ready-to-implement strategies for teaching students to compose and edit written work electronically, conduct Internet inquiry, create blogs, websites, and podcasts, and use text messaging and Twitter productively. The book is grounded in state-of-the-art research on the writing process and the role of writing in content area learning. Teacher-friendly features include vivid classroom examples, differentiation tips, links to online resources, and reproducible worksheets and forms. The large size format facilitates photocopying.

Innovative Assessment for the 21st Century Valerie J. Shute, Betsy Jane Becker, 2010-09-08 In today's rapidly changing and information-rich world, students are not acquiring adequate knowledge and skills to prepare them for careers in mathematics, science, and technology with the traditional approach to assessment and instruction. New competencies, e.g., information communication and technology skills, are needed to deal successfully with the deluge of data. In order to accomplish this, new educationally valuable skills must be acknowledged and assessed. Toward this end, the skills we value and support for a society producing knowledge workers, not simply service workers, must be identified together with methods for their measurement. Innovative Assessment for the 21st Century explores the faces of future assessment and asks hard questions such as: What would an assessment that captures all of the above attributes look like? Should it be standardized? What is the role of the professional teacher?

Technology Enhanced Innovative Assessment Hong Jiao, Robert W. Lissitz, 2017-11-01 Assessment innovation tied to technology is greatly needed in a wide variety of assessment applications. This book adopts an interdisciplinary perspective to learn from advances in developing technology-enhanced innovative assessments from multiple fields. The book chapters address the development of virtual assessments, including game-based assessment, simulation-based assessment, and narrative-based assessment, as well as how simulation and game-based assessments serve both formative and summative purposes. Further chapters address the critical challenge of integrating assessment directly into the learning process so that teacher effectiveness and student learning can be enhanced. Two chapters specifically address the psychometric challenges related to innovative items. One chapter talks about evaluating the psychometric properties of innovative items, while the other chapter presents a new psychometric model for calibrating innovative items embedded in multiple contexts. In addition, validity issues are addressed related to technology-enhanced innovative assessment. It is hoped that the book provides readers with rich and useful information about the development of several types of virtual assessments from multiple perspectives. The authors include experts from industry where innovative items have been used for many years and experts from research institutes and universities who have done pioneering work related to developing innovative items with formative applications to facilitate learning. In addition, expert advice has been provided on validating such work UPSC Psychology Paper-1 & 2 Eassy Writing Practice Book 300
