From Pariah To Patriot The Changing Image Of The German Peasant 1770 184:

From Pariah to Patriot John G. Gagliardo, 2014-07-15 Until late in the eighteenth century the peasantry of the German states had been dismissed contemptuously by the aristocracy and middle classes as brutish and virtually subhuman With the advent of organized movements for peasant emancipation and agrarian reform however many German writers and publicists began also to reassess the role of the peasant in society Within less than a century the public image of the German peasant had been completely changed Where formerly he had been scorned as untermenschlich by 1840 he was firmly established in the public mind as an embodiment of the highest national virtues a patriotic citizen with special qualities of singular importance to the fatherland Mr Gagliardo's study is a suggestive inquiry into the origins and development of a modern rural ideology and its relationship to German doctrines of nationality

From Pariah to Patriot John G. Gagliardo, 1969

Productive Men, Reproductive Women Marion W. Gray, 2000 The debate on the origins of modern gender norms continues unabated across the academic disciplines This book adds an important and hitherto neglected dimension Focusing on rural life and its values the author argues that the modern ideal of separate spheres originated in the era of the Enlightenment Prior to the eighteenth century cultural norms prescribed active interdependent economic roles for both women and men Enlightenment economists transformed these gender paradigms as they postulated a market exchange system directed exclusively by men By the early nineteenth century the emerging bourgeois value system affirmed the new civil society and the market place as exclusively male realms These standards defined women's options largely as marriage and motherhood

Imagining Russian Regions Susan Smith-Peter, 2017-10-02 In Imagining Russian Regions Subnational Identity and Civil Society in Nineteenth Century Russia Susan Smith Peter shows how ideas of civil society encouraged the growth of subnational identity in Russia before 1861 Adam Smith and G W F Hegel's ideas of civil society influenced Russians and the resulting plans to stimulate the growth of civil society also formed subnational identities It challenges the view of the provinces as empty space held by Nikolai Gogol who rejected the new non noble provincial identity and welcomed a noble only district identity By 1861 these non noble and noble publics would come together to form a multi estate provincial civil society whose promise was not fulfilled due to the decision of the government to keep the peasant estate institutionally separate
