Performing Pain Maria Cizmic, 2012-01-12 Time after time people turn to music when coping with traumatic life events Music can help process emotions interpret memories and create a sense of collective identity In Performing Pain author Maria Cizmic focuses on the late 20th century in Eastern Europe as she uncovers music's relationships to trauma and grief The 1970s and 1980s witnessed a cultural preoccupation in this region with the meanings of historical suffering particularly surrounding the Second World War and the Stalinist era Journalists historians writers artists and filmmakers frequently negotiated themes related to pain and memory truth and history morality and spirituality during glasnost and the years leading up to it Performing Pain considers how works by composers Alfred Schnittke Galina Ustvolskaya Arvo Part and Henryk Gorecki musically address contemporary concerns regarding history and suffering through composition performance and reception Taking theoretical cues from psychology sociology and literary and cultural studies Cizmic offers a set of hermeneutic essays that demonstrate the ways in which people employ music in order to make sense of historical traumas and losses. Seemingly postmodern compositional choices such as quotation, fragmentation and stasis create musical analogies to psychological and emotional responses to trauma and grief and the physical realities of their embodied performance focus attention on the ethics of pain and representation. Furthermore, as film music, these works participate in contemporary debates regarding memory and trauma. A comprehensive and innovative study, Performing Pain will fascinate scholars interested in the music of Eastern Europe and in aesthetic articulations of suffering. World

Culture is not simply an explanation of last resort but is itself a rich, multifaceted and contested concept and set of practices that needs to be expanded, appreciated and applied in fresh ways if it is to be both valued in itself and to be of use in practical development. This innovative book places culture specifically in the form of the arts back at the centre of debates in development studies by introducing new ways of conceptualizing art in relation to development. The book shows how the arts and development are related in very practical ways as means to achieve development goals through visual, dramatic, filmic and craft-inspired ways. It advocates not so much culture and development but rather for the development of culture. Without a cultural content to economic and social transformation, the problems found in much development, uprooting of cultures, loss of art forms, languages and modes of expression and performance may only accelerate. Paying attention to the development of the arts as the content of development helps to amend this culturally destructive process. Finally, the book argues for the value of the arts in attaining sustainable cultures promoting poverty alleviation encouraging self empowerment stimulating creativity and the social imagination which in turn flow back into wider processes of social transformation Discussion questions at the end of each chapter make this book ideal to help foster further thinking and debate This book is an inspiring read for postgraduate students and researchers in the fields of development studies cultural studies and sociology of development Designing for the 21st Century Tom Inns,2021-09-02 As we become familiar with the 21st century we can see that what we are designing is changing new technologies support the creation of new forms of product and service and new pressures on business and society demand the design of solutions to increasingly complex problems sometimes local often global in nature Customers users and stakeholders are no longer passive recipients of design expectations are higher and increased participation is often essential This book explores these issues through the work of 21 research teams Over a twelve month period each of these groups held a series of workshops and events to examine different facets of future design activity as part of the UK s research council supported Designing for the 21st Century Research Initiative Each of these 21 contributions describes the context of enquiry the journey taken by the research team and key insights generated through discourse Editor and Initiative Director Tom Inns provides an introductory chapter that suggests ways that the reader might navigate these different viewpoints Religiosity on University Campuses in Africa Abdoulaye Sounaye,Frédéric Madore,2023 This volume examines religiosity on university campuses in Sub Saharan Africa Focusing on both individuals and organized groups the contributions open a window onto how religion becomes a factor affects social interactions is experienced and mobilized by various actors It brings together case studies from various disciplinary backgrounds anthropology sociology history religious studies literature and theoretical orientations to illustrate the significance of religiosity in recent developments on university campuses It pays a particular attention to religion informed activism and contributes a fresh analysis of processes that are shaping both the experience of being student and the university campus as a moral space Last but not least it sheds light onto the ways in which the campus becomes a site of a reformulation of both religiosity and sociality The Sage Encyclopedia of Qualitative Research Methods: A-L ; Vol. 2, M-Z Index Lisa M.
