From The Of 1000 Tales Stories Of Armenia And Its People 189219:

From the Book of One Thousand Tales Diana Agabeg Apar, 2004 Father's Rooms is a sweet humorous and painfully revealing memoir which chronicles a fifty year old daughter's experiences of caring for her father with dementia Helen arrives at her hometown in the Midwest to take her popular and respected father to California She has received numerous phone calls and letters about his behavior She wants to deny his diagnosis of Alzheimers even as she arrives to rescue him Her father is the family hero His illness surfaces conflictual feelings among his children While admitting his diagnosis he still tries to renew his driver's license hitch hikes around California and appropriates the laundry room of his assisted living home Although a non fiction memoir Father's Rooms has the dramatic elements of fiction Place becomes a metaphor for her father's internal world As the disease progresses the author must move her father to facilities which provide more care and greater restrictions His rooms mirror the interior landscape of his disease This book is a must read for adult children or partners of people suffering from Alzheimers It combines the self help guidance of The Thirty Six Hour Day and the philosophical sweetness of Tuesdays With Morrie to tell a piercing story of love and loss that never hides in sentimentality or romanticization

The Golden Maiden and Other Folk Tales and Fairy Stories Told in Armenia A. G. Seklemian, 2014-09-26

THE STORY TELLER TO HIS AUDIENCE If I were telling my stories to an audience composed of Armenians as I told them years ago I would begin without any preliminary remarks or introduction But since the audience is made up of people who are comparatively unacquainted with my native land and its traditions naturally they will like to know who the story teller is where he got his narratives and by whom and how his tales were first told About twenty years ago I was a boy living in a village on the heights of the Taurus Mountains in Cilicia or Lesser Armenia not far from the Mediterranean Sea Like boys and girls all over the world I was very fond of stories but there were no story books or other reading matter with which I and other children of my age could gratify our eager desire for stories But better than these were the aged folks who told us all the interesting stories which our inquisitive childhood required I had two grandmothers and half a dozen aunts all unlettered country people who took great delight in a rich store of folk lore and fairy tales and who told me the most entertaining and delightful stories that I have ever heard In every village home there were one or two such old people who entertained the youth of their respective homes During the long winter evenings we boys and girls gathered together around the village hearth to listen to the old man or aged woman rehearsing tales of fairies giants genii dragons knights winged beauties captive maidens and other thousand and one mysterious beings I need not say how with utmost interest our youthful minds used to follow the details of these vivid and picturesque stories drinking in every word with the greatest avidity This was true not only of children but of grown up people also whose principal pastime during the long and tedious winter nights was the rehearsing of folk tales and fairy stories or listening to others as they told them These circumstances gave me opportunity and power to commit to memory a great number of tales and rehearse them whenever there was a favorable occasion By this means I improved and increased my store of tales so much that I became quite a noted story teller in our village at a time when I was but a mere lad Subsequently both during my college course in Aintab Cilicia and during the period when I was a teacher in Erzroom of Armenia proper I had the opportunity to travel a great deal and to study the life and manners of the Armenians in their primitive homes I found the same fairy stories and folk tales current everywhere with such slight differences only as the people made when appropriating the tales to their own surroundings and to their fund of knowledge At that time it occurred to my mind that it would be a good plan to make a collection of these tales in order to make use of them some day and so I kept notes of the tales just as they were told by the common unlettered country people Bishop Sirwantzdians an Armenian clergyman also made a collection of Armenian folk tales taking them from the mouth of the people just as they were told He published his collection in two separate books The first Manana Manna was printed in Constantinople in 1876 by the Dindessian Printing press since closed and the second Hamov Hodov Delicious and Fragrant was printed in Constantinople in 1884 by the Bagdadian Printing press My personal notes of Armenian tales and these two books of Bishop Sirwantzdians have furnished the material of the present volume As the Bishop and myself made our collections independently in different districts of Armenia our texts naturally differed from each other in some points But the two being substantially the same in putting the stories into English I have followed the one which I thought to be the most original taking all the circumstances into consideration

Armenian Mythology Mardiros H. Ananikian,2020-01-07 Armenian mythology was strongly influenced by Zoroastrianism with deities such as Aramazd Mihr or Anahit as well as Assyrian traditions such as Barsamin but there are fragmentary traces of native traditions such as Hayk or Vahagn and Astghik According to De Morgan there are signs which indicate that the Armenians were initially nature worshipers and that this faith in time was transformed to the worship of national gods of which many were the equivalents of the gods in the Roman Greek and Persian cultures Georg Brandes described the Armenian gods in his book When Armenia accepted Christianity it was not only the temples which were destroyed but also the songs and poems about the old gods and heroes that the people sang We have only rare segments of these songs and poems segments which bear witness of a great spiritual wealth and the power of creation of this people and these alone are sufficient reason enough for recreating the temples of the old Armenian gods These gods were neither the Asian heavenly demons nor the precious and the delicate Greek gods but something that reflected the characteristics of the Armenian people which they have been polishing through the ages namely ambitious wise and good hearted
