From Provinces Into Nations Demographic Integration In Western Europe 1870 1960:

From Provinces into Nations Susan Cotts Watkins, 2014-07-14 Between 1870 and 1960 national boundaries became more evident on the demographic map of Western Europe. In most of the fifteen countries examined here, differences in marital fertility, illegitimacy, and marriage from one province, counties, cantons, arrondissements, to another diminished considerably. From Provinces into Nations describes this shift to greater national demographic homogeneity and places it in the context of a parallel decline in linguistic diversity as well as in the context of increases in national market integration, the expansion of state activities, and nation building. The book interprets the shift as evidence of the influence of communities on demographic behavior and as an indication of the growing predominance of national over local communities. The author uses demographic data too often the property of specialists to examine themes of interest to historians, sociologists, economists, and political scientists interested in the integration of modern societies. Originally published in 1990, The Princeton Legacy Library uses the latest print-on-demand technology to again make available previously out-of-print books from the distinguished backlist of Princeton University Press. Will Europe Work? Martin Kohli, Mojca Novak, 2004-01-14 In the post-war years, European integration was driven by nation-states attempting to stimulate economic growth and social cohesion through European trade and cooperation. The results were prosperous and unified. Western European societies were based on full employment and redistributive welfare states. However, in today's Europe, a Europe subject to increasing international competition fuelled by both economic and cultural globalization, the European social model needs to be re-examined, yet its emphasis on cohesion remains crucial for the future of Europe as a unified polity. Investigating this issue in depth, this outstanding collection is divided into three key sections. These parts ask how recent developments have changed the old European model of employment and social protection and outline a possible new European social model. Focus on the questions of European identity and European borders with special emphasis on cultural divisions such as ethnicity, concentrate on institutions such as citizenship and language and reflect on sociology's ability to address European integration and the new European social order. Will Europe Work brings together some of the leading names in European sociology to look at the construction of this new European social order through changing patterns of employment and welfare and changing definitions of citizenship and identity.

From Death to Birth National Research Council, Division of Behavioral and Social Sciences and Education, Commission on Behavioral and Social Sciences and Education, Committee on Population, 1998-01-12 The last 35 years or so have witnessed a dramatic shift in the demography of many developing countries Before 1960 there were substantial improvements in life expectancy but fertility declines were very rare Few people used modern contraceptives and couples had large families Since 1960 however fertility rates have fallen in virtually every major geographic region of the world for almost all political social and economic groups What factors are responsible for the sharp decline in fertility What role do child survival programs or family programs play in fertility declines Casual observation suggests that a decline in infant and child mortality is the most important cause but there is surprisingly little hard evidence for this conclusion The papers in this volume explore the theoretical methodological and empirical dimensions of the fertility mortality relationship It includes several detailed case studies based on contemporary data from developing countries and on historical data from Europe and the United States

Fertility Transition in the Developing World John Bongaarts, Dennis Hodgson, 2022-09-01 This open access book provides an overview and analysis of the causes and consequences of the massive and highly consequential transition in reproductive behaviour that occurred in Asia Latin America and Africa since the mid 20th century In the 1950s contraceptive use was rare and women typically spend most of their reproductive years bearing and rearing children By 2020 fertility and contraceptive use in Asia and Latin America reached levels commonly observed in the developed world Africa's fertility is still high but transitions have started in all countries This monograph is the first to provide a comprehensive analysis of these trends and their determinants covering changes in reproductive behaviour e g use of contraception and abortion preferences e g desire to limit and space births and the role of socioeconomic development e g education The role of government policies and in particular family planning programs is discussed in depth Particular attention is given to provide a balanced assessment of several political and scientific controversies that have beset the field As such this book provides an interesting read for a wide audience of undergraduate and graduate students researchers and public health policy makers

Categories and Contexts Simon Szreter, Hania Sholkamy, A. Dharmalingam, 2004-03-18 Throughout its history as a social science demography has been associated with an exclusively quantitative orientation for studying social problems As a result demographers tend to analyse population issues scientifically through sets of fixed social categories that are divorced from dynamic relationships and local contexts and processes This volume questions these fixed categories in two ways First it examines the historical and political circumstances in which such categories had their provenance and second it reassesses their uncritical applications over space and time in a diverse range of empirical case studies encouraging throughout a constructive interdisciplinary dialogue involving anthropologists demographers historians and sociologists This volume seeks to examine the political complexities that lie at the heart of population studies by focusing on category formation category use and category critique It shows that this takes the form of a dialectic between the needs for clarity of scientific and administrative analysis and the recalcitrant diversity of the social contexts and human processes that generate population change The critical reflections of each chapter are enriched by meticulous ethnographic fieldwork and historical research drawn from every continent This volume therefore exemplifies a new methodology for research in population studies one that does not simply accept and re use the established categories of population science but seeks critically and reflexively to explore test and re evaluate their meanings in diverse contexts It shows that for demography to realise its full potential it must urgently re examine and contextualize the social categories used today in population research
