Front Page Economics Gerald D. Suttles, Mark D. Jacobs, 2011-02-15 In an age when pundits constantly decry overt political bias in the media we have naturally become skeptical of the news But the bluntness of such critiques masks the highly sophisticated ways in which the media frame important stories In Front Page Economics Gerald Suttles delves deep into the archives to examine coverage of two major economic crashes in 1929 and 1987 in order to systematically break down the way newspapers normalize crises Poring over the articles generated by the crashes as well as the people in them the writers who wrote them and the cartoons that ran alongside them Suttles uncovers dramatic changes between the ways the first and second crashes were reported In the intervening half century an entire new economic language had arisen and the practice of business journalism had been completely altered Both of these transformations Suttles demonstrates allowed journalists to describe the 1987 crash in a vocabulary that was normal and familiar to readers rendering it routine A subtle and probing look at how ideologies are packaged and transmitted to the casual newspaper reader Front Page Economics brims with important insights that shed light on our own economically tumultuous times

Douglas Arnold, 2013-10-31 Congress the Press and Political Accountability is the first large scale examination of how local media outlets cover members of the United States Congress Douglas Arnold asks do local newspapers provide the information citizens need in order to hold representatives accountable for their actions in office In contrast with previous studies which largely focused on the campaign period he tests various hypotheses about the causes and consequences of media coverage by exploring coverage during an entire congressional session Using three samples of local newspapers from across the country Arnold analyzes all coverage over a two year period every news story editorial opinion column letter and list First he investigates how twenty five newspapers covered twenty five local representatives and next how competing newspapers in six cities covered their corresponding legislators Examination of an even larger sample sixty seven newspapers and 187 representatives shows why some newspapers cover legislators more thoroughly than do other papers Arnold then links the coverage data with a large public opinion survey to show that the volume of coverage affects citizens awareness of representatives and challengers The results show enormous variation in coverage Some newspapers cover legislators frequently thoroughly and accessibly Others some of them famous for their national coverage largely ignore local representatives The analysis also confirms that only those incumbents or challengers in the most competitive races and those who command huge sums of money receive extensive coverage
