Office for Subject Cataloging Policy, 2013      Unrequited Conquests Roland Greene, 1999 Love poetry dominated European literature during the Renaissance. Its attitudes, conventions, and values appeared not only in courtly settings but also in the transatlantic world where cultures were being built, power exercised, and policies made. In this major contribution to our understanding of both the Age of Exploration and early modern lyric, Roland Greene argues that love poetry was not simply a reflection of the times but a means of cultural transformation. European encounters with the Americas awakened many forms of desire which pervaded the writings of explorers like Columbus and his contemporaries. These experiences in turn shaped colonial society in Brazil, Peru, and elsewhere. The New World, while it could be explored, conquered, and exploited, could never really be known, leaving Europe's desire continually unrequited and the project of empire unfulfilled. Using numerous poetic examples and extensive historical documentation, Unrequited Conquests rewrites the relations between the Renaissance and colonial Latin America and between poetry and history      Rio & the Best of Brazil Arnold Greenberg, Harriet Greenberg, 2008-03 A 420 page travel guide with color photos and maps throughout      The Conquest of Brazil Roy Nash, 1926      Library of Congress Subject Headings: F-O Library of Congress. It demonstrates that ecological spirituality can and should be understood beyond the dichotomy of personal and political, between people and nature in the field of environmental anthropology. The book uses a broad philosophical methodology based on the phenomenological theories of Maurice Merleau-Ponty, Tim Ingold, and Alfred Schütz, combined with post-structuralist conceptions of the relationship between person and world, individual and society. The field research consisted of ethnographic travel, observation, and recorded dialogue with individuals based in each ecovillage: Arca Verde situated in Campos de Cima da Serra, Vrinda Bhumi, a Vaishnava ecovillage in Baependi, MG; Goura Vrindavana, a Vaishnava ecovillage in Paraty, RJ; and Muriqui Assu Ecovillage Project, a secular ecovillage in Niterói, RJ. Throughout the book, ethnographic research is woven together with poetic interludes, images, personal narrative, experience, and phenomenological theory, bringing a new understanding and approach to environmental anthropology as a discipline. Including a Preface written by Tim Ingold, it will appeal to academics, researchers, and upper-level students in phenomenology, environmental philosophy, environmental anthropology, religious studies, and social sciences more broadly      The Encyclopaedia Britannica, 1890      International Encyclopedia of Linguistics William J.
