

Isolated Dwelling

An isolated dwelling is a settlement containing one or two houses, isolated dwellings are found in remote rural areas and may include outbuildings such as barns, cattle pens and holiday homes. People who live in isolated dwellings need to travel great distances to access goods and services. Sometimes goods can be sent to the place in question by the post. Because of their remoteness, isolated dwellings are generally quite attractive places.

Village

A village is a small settlement with a population of around hundred people. Most villages have a central shop that sells essential items like bread, milk, meat and other everyday items. People living in villages usually travel to work, to school or to visit friends and family. There are limited services and social facilities. Villages are good settlements for those who like rural life and their families.

City

A city is a large settlement with a population of hundreds of thousands of people. Most cities have excellent opportunities, specially shops and shopping centres. Many people choose to live in the city because they can find a high rate of jobs in the city. There are many services like hospitals and schools located near the shopping and business. Cities can be small and big places. The number of jobs in the city can make it a very attractive place to live.

Hamlet

A hamlet is a very small settlement with a population of less than a hundred people. Hamlets do not have any shops or services. They may have a small facility such as a community hall. People living in hamlets must travel to nearby towns or cities to find what they need. There are very small settlements. There are no services or social facilities available. Hamlets are very poor settlements with very little to offer to the people who live there.

Town

A town is a medium sized settlement with a population of around thousand people. Most towns have excellent opportunities, as well as other facilities such as shops, schools and hospitals. Most people who live in the town can work nearby. Services such as schools and hospitals are present in the town, along with shops and facilities such as shopping centre, parks and cinemas. Residential areas of the town are usually built on higher ground around the shops and business.

Re-imagining the City Somaiyeh Falahat, 2013-12-09 Somaiyeh Falahat investigates the spatial and morphological logic of pre modern Middle Eastern and North African cities so called Islamic cities She bases her argument on the fact that the city and consequently its form and structure similar to other human products have deep roots in the thought structure of the people Thus to know such places properly one has to refer to this life world and use it as a structure to observe the city This approach aims at opening new levels of understanding of the city by grasping indigenous concepts and structures it puts forward claims for the possibility of a new method of analysis The author studies the historic city of Isfahan as the case study and suggests that an indigenous term Hezar Too can explain the complexity of the city which has been interpreted as labyrinthine and maze like accounting for the essence of the city and its form in an appropriate way Looking at the city from this new point of view can help in observing it in its context and subsequently in discovering its real character
