The Taste of Place Amy B. Trubek, 2008 While much has been written about the concept of terroir as it relates to wine this book expands the concept into cuisine and culture more broadly Bringing together stories of people farming cooking and eating the author focuses on a series of examples ranging from shagbark hickory nuts in Wisconsin to wines from northern California

Urban Place Peggy F. Barlett, 2005-08-26 Amidst city concrete and suburban sprawl Americans are discovering new ways to reconnect with the natural world From community gardens in New York s Lower East Side to homeless shelters in California the search for a more sustainable future has led grassroots groups to a profound reconnection to place and to the natural world Studies of the health consequences of renewing a connection with nature support the urgency of providing green surroundings as cities expand and the majority of the earth's population lives in urban areas. Medical research results from groups as diverse as healthy volunteers, surgery patients, and heart attack survivors suggest that contact with nature may improve health and well-being. Engagement with nearby natural places also provides restoration from mental fatigue and support for more resilient and cooperative behavior. Aspects of stronger community life are fostered by access to nature, suggesting that there are significant social as well as physical and psychological benefits from connection with the natural world. This volume brings together research from anthropology, sociology, public health, psychology, and landscape architecture to highlight how awareness of locale and a meaningful renewal of attachment with the earth are connected to delight in learning about nature as well as to civic action and new forms of community. Community garden coalitions, organic market advocates, and greenspace preservationists resist the power of global forces enacting visions of a different future. Their creative efforts tell a story of a constructive and dynamic middle ground between private plots and public action between human health and ecosystem health, between individual attachment and urban sustainability.

Bitter Harvest

Ann Cooper, Lisa M. Holmes, 2013-12-16 The history of food is not as straightforward as it may seem. Food isn't just food. It is ritual, tradition, and memory. So begins Ann Cooper's groundbreaking new book on the history of sustenance. Cooper, a renowned chef and graduate of New York's famed Culinary Institute of America, expertly guides us from the roots of agriculture in North America through the profound changes initiated by the Industrial Revolution all the way up to the present day, offering analyses of recent controversies such as Europe's campaign against Frankenfood and the genetic engineering of plants and animals in the United States. Throughout, Cooper takes both a macro and micro approach, examining the effect politics, technology, war, international trade, and agribusiness have had on the world's food supply as well as the changing social patterns which have made a family meal at the table almost a relic of the past. Did you know 80% of chicken has salmonella? By the year 2010 95 percent of items bought at the grocery store may be consumed within 20 minutes of getting them home. Cancer researchers believe that over one third of all future cancers will be diet-related, roughly the same proportion now attributable to smoking. Passionate, political, informed, and engaging, Bitter Harvest is filled with fascinating facts and anecdotes. Cooper offers a comprehensive analysis of the issue of sustainability, arguing persuasively why we must begin to change everything from the way food is shipped to the basic components of our diets. Touching on virtually every aspect of the food culture, Bitter Harvest is a vibrant example of the emergence of the chef as a political voice to be reckoned with. A food manifesto for the new millennium, it is a must-read for anyone concerned with health, nutrition, and the future of our planet. You will never look at your dinner plate in quite the same way again.

Using the Agricultural, Environmental, and Food Literature Barbara S. Hutchinson, Antoinette Paris-Greider, 2002-07-17 This text discusses a wide range of print and electronic media to locate hard-to-find documents, navigate poorly indexed subjects, and investigate specific research topics and subcategories. It includes a chapter on grey and extension literature covering technical reports.
