Birth controlled Amrita Pande, 2022-06-14 Birth controlled analyses the world of selective reproduction the politics of who gets to legitimately reproduce the future through a cross cultural analysis of three modes of controlling birth contraception reproductive violence and repro genetic technologies It argues that as fertility rates decline worldwide the fervour to control fertility and fertile bodies does not dissipate what evolves is the preferred mode of control Although new technologies like those that assist conception or allow genetic selection may appear to be an antithesis of other violent versions of population control this book demonstrates that both are part of the same continuum All population control policies target and vilify women Black women in particular and coerce them into subjecting their bodies to state and medical surveillance Birth controlled argues that assisted reproductive technologies and repro genetic technologies employ a similar and stratified burden of blame and responsibility based on gender race class and caste To empirically and historically ground the analysis the book includes contributions from two postcolonial nations South Africa and India examining interactions between the history of colonialism and the economics of neoliberal markets and their influence on the technologies and politics of selective reproduction The book provides a critical interdisciplinary and cutting edge dialogue around the interconnected issues that shape reproductive politics in an ostensibly post population control era The contributions draw on a breadth of disciplines ranging from gender studies sociology medical anthropology politics and science and technology studies to theology public health and epidemiology facilitating an interdisciplinary dialogue around the interconnected modes of controlling birth and practices of neo eugenics

The Movement for Global Mental Health William Sax, Claudia Lang, 2025-10-01 In The Movement for Global Mental Health Critical Views from South and Southeast Asia prominent anthropologists public health physicians and psychiatrists respond sympathetically but critically to the Movement for Global Mental Health MGMH They question some of its fundamental assumptions the idea that mental disorders can clearly be identified that they are primarily of biological origin that the world is currently facing an epidemic of them that the most appropriate treatments for them normally involve psycho pharmaceutical drugs and that local or indigenous therapies are of little interest or importance for treating them The contributors argue that on the contrary defining mental disorders is difficult and culturally variable that social and biographical factors are often important causes of them that the epidemic of mental disorders may be an effect of new ways of measuring them and that the countries of South and Southeast Asia have abundant though non psychiatric resources for dealing with them In short they advocate a thoroughgoing mental health pluralism

Law, Policy and Reproductive Autonomy Erin Nelson, 2014-07-18 Reproductive choices are at once the most private and intimate decisions we make in our lives and undeniably also among the most public Reproductive decision making takes place in a web of overlapping concerns political and ideological socio economic health and health care all of which engage the public and involve strongly held opinions and attitudes about appropriate conduct on the part of individuals and the state Law Policy and Reproductive Autonomy examines the idea of reproductive autonomy noting that in attempting to look closely at the contours of the concept we begin to see some uncertainty about its meaning and legal implications about how to understand reproductive autonomy and how to value it Both mainstream and feminist literature about autonomy contribute valuable insights into the meaning and implications of reproductive autonomy The developing feminist literature on relational autonomy provides a useful starting point for a contextualised conception of reproductive autonomy that creates the opportunity for meaningful exercise of reproductive choice With a contextualised approach to reproductive autonomy as a backdrop the book traces aspects of the regulation of reproduction in Canadian English US and Australian law and policy arguing that not all reproductive decisions necessarily demand the same level of deference in law and policy and making recommendations for reform

Guha,2017-07-20 The subject of medicalisation of childbirth in colonial India has so far been identified with three major themes the attempt to reform or sanitise the site of birthing practices establishing lying in hospitals and replacing traditional birth attendants with trained midwives and qualified female doctors This book part of the series The Social History of Health and Medicine in South Asia looks at the interactions between childbirth and midwifery practices and colonial modernities Taking eastern India as a case study and related research from other areas with hard empirical data from local government bodies municipal corporations and district boards it goes beyond the conventional narrative to show how the late nineteenth century initiatives to reform birthing practices were essentially a modernist response of the western educated colonised middle class to the colonial critique of Indian sociocultural codes It provides a perceptive historical analysis of how institutionalisation of midwifery was shaped by the debates on the women s question nationalism and colonial public health policies all intersecting in the interwar years The study traces the beginning of medicalisation of childbirth the professionalisation of obstetrics the agency of male doctors inclusion of midwifery as an academic subject in medical colleges and consequences of maternal care and infant welfare This book will greatly interest scholars and researchers in history social medicine public policy gender studies and South Asian studies Family Planning Communication in India

Shashwati Goswami,2023-09-08 This book is the first systematic study on the historiography of the family planning communication process in India It traces the history of the development of a highly technical health communication process It discusses how the discourse on India s population problem was at the heart of the development dialogue which was being promoted by the British colonial administration The book examines the role of the censuses and the Five Year plans in the development of the discussion on the population explosion in India Also it critically discusses the role of the Ford Foundation s leadership in institutionalising the communication process in India The book essentially argues that population control communication enabled the ideas of a homogenised nation an ideal Indian woman and an ideal Indian family This in turn led to the obliteration of cultural ethnic geographical and economic specificities of India as a country The volume will be of great interest to scholars and researchers of public policy media and communication studies Indian politics modern Indian history and South Asian Studies
