From Where I Sit Mark L. Winston, 2018-05-31 A scientist before he was a beekeeper Mark L Winston found in his new hobby a paradigm for understanding the role science should play in society In essays originally appearing as columns in Bee Culture the leading professional journal Winston uses beekeeping as a starting point to discuss broader issues such as how agriculture functions under increasingly complex social and environmental restraints how scientists grapple with issues of accountability and how people struggle to maintain contact with the natural world Winston's reflections on bees beekeeping and science cover a period of tumultuous change in North America a time when new parasites reduced research funding and changing economic conditions have disrupted the livelihoods of bee farmers Managed honeybees in the city provide a major public service by pollinating gardens fruit trees and berry bushes and should be encouraged rather than legislated out of existence Our cities groomed and cosmopolitan as they appear still obey the basic rules of nature and our gardens and yards are no exception Homegrown squashes apple trees raspberries peas beans and other garden crops require bees to move the pollen from one flower to another no matter how urbanized or sophisticated the neighborhood
