Economic Transition in Central and Eastern Europe

Daniel Gros,Alfred Steinherr,2004-03-25 Analysing the key problems facing the transition countries in Central and Eastern Europe this accessible book describes the legacy of the central planners the progress achieved so far and the need for further reforms It documents the outstanding successes and failures and analyses why certain approaches to transition have worked and others have not It tests where transition is over and shows how some countries have graduated from transition to integration through their efforts to join the European Union EU It discusses the costs and benefits of the eastern enlargement of the EU The specific experiences of German unification the Soviet Union s disintegration and Russia s complex reforms are examined as are the specific issues that need to be addressed in the Balkans The book concludes by indicating how the expanding EU could help the poor performers through inclusion in a continent wide integrated economic area Trade, Development and Structural Change Anca M.

Voicu, Somnath Sen, Inmaculada Martinez-Zarzoso, 2018-05-30 This book examines the evolution of trade and trade patterns in Central and Eastern European countries CEEC and assesses the implications of these patterns on structural change and economic development within transition economies Taking the fall of the Iron Curtain in 1989 as a starting point the authors discuss the transition of former communist CEE countries from centrally planned to market driven economies arguing that trade was the primary engine for the economic growth and transition process they experienced The chapters in this book incorporate the results of previous studies some of which are based on original research conducted by the authors dedicated to the integration process of international and European trade More importantly the authors look at the broader aspects of structural change and economic development indeed the whole process of economic transformation Thus the book moves well beyond the core trade and growth framework to look at technological progress foreign investment institutional development and structural change in Central and Eastern European countries Remaking Eastern Europe – On the Political Economy of Transition J.M. Van Brabant, 2012-12-06 This compact volume is meant as a modest contribution to the ongoing debate on how to transform in particular the radically reforming Eastern European economies into more productive sociopolitical organizations Although my main focus here is on the economics of reform and east west assistance I have tried to embed the multiple technical aspects of restructuring such a resource allocation into the context of remaking Eastern Europe That the volume coincides with the seminal transformations of the communist countries of Eastern Europe is of course not fortuitous But I shall have much less to say about the political transitions from communism to parliamentary democracy except the ways in which the latter may bolster or hinder the hoped for economic mutations In taking stock of where I stand on the issue of radical reform of planned economics in general and the CMEA in particular both still moving targets I have benefited greatly from participation in formal and informal conferences on economic reform The product has also profited from many informal discussions and exchanges of views among friends and colleagues including those entrusted with and purely interested in efforts on the overall topic of the study launched from within the broad context of the United Nations my at times reluctant employer Lessons from the Economic Transition Salvatore Zecchini, 2013-12-01

An attentive reader embarking on this book might wonder what the economic transition to which the title refers might be In this century almost all countries have gone through periods of economic transition but which period of economic history can claim to embody the notion or to represent the era of the transition Definitely no country or group of countries has experienced anything comparable to the economic upheavals that the fall of communism has brought about in a large portion of the world in just three years 1989 to 1991 No other transition to date has prompted more interest and more studies among economists academics and policy makers than has the transformation of centrally planned economies into market based systems It is this transformation that has come to define the transition Early in the transformation process in November 1990 with the support of the Centre for Co operation with the Economies in Transition CCET I launched a conference to examine the challenges faced by these countries About six years have gone by and a new economic landscape has emerged in that part of the world The difficulties in transforming these economies have exceeded all expectations and economic performances have varied considerably across countries The time has come therefore to make a first evaluation of progress and problems with a view to extracting useful policy lessons to guide policy makers in successfully completing the transition in the near future

The East European Economy in Context David Turnock,1997 Since 1989 the former communist countries of Eastern Europe have witnessed a profound and dramatic upheaval Turnock examines the transition from Communist to free market economies both within and between the states of Eastern Europe Economic Transition in Eastern Europe and the Former Soviet Union ,1994 The Political Economy of Transition in Central and Eastern Europe Jens Bastian,2019-06-04 First published in 1998 this volume contributes to the debate after the fall of the Soviet Union on the transition of Eastern European former Soviet countries to a market economy The transition was an enterprise as daring in practice and historically unprecedented as it is an analytical laboratory subject to constant reflection The first two chapters address foreign direct investment in Central and Eastern European countries The rebuilding of social insurance systems is then addressed with a focus on state pension schemes The subsequent two chapters examine the political and demographic features of transition countries highlighting media reform as a key aspect for the consolidation of a democratic law based market economy and society Focus then turns to Poland the country which is considered to display the most progress in the political economy of transition Finally the controversial issue of the electoral successes of former Communist parties in Central and Eastern Europe is discussed

Building the New Europe Mario Baldassarri,Robert Mundell,1993-10-15 Building the New Europe is at the core of the new international economic and political initiatives leading the world through the nineties and toward the twenty first century This challenge rests on dual processes on the one hand the European Community wide single market and monetary integration and on the other the East European transition to the market place and integration with Western economies The volume is divided into two parts The first section includes essays on the general and specific topics linked to the transitions to a market economy and to a pluralist political system The second section comprises essays on individual countries such as Hungary Poland Yugoslavia and the Republics of the former Soviet Union Economics of Institutional Change Elodie Douarin,Tomasz Mickiewicz,2017-10-24 This book a third edition has been significantly expanded and updated It revisits the process of institutional change its characteristics determinants and implications for economic performance New chapters address the significance of Post Communist transition the differences and importance of initial conditions in institutional building and social norms values and happiness Other chapters have been expanded to include for example a focus on the Washington consensus commentary on the 2008 financial crisis state capacity and corruption and new findings on redistribution and inequality With specific focus on Central Europe Eastern Europe and Central Asia this revised edition examines the process of development and its interdependence with institutions

Transition Economies Aleksandr V. Gevorkyan, 2018-04-17 This interdisciplinary study offers a comprehensive analysis of the transition economies of Central and Eastern Europe and the former Soviet Union Providing full historical context and drawing on a wide range of literature this book explores the continuous economic and social transformation of the post socialist world While the future is yet to be determined understanding the present phase of transformation is critical The book s core exploration evolves along three pivots of competitive economic structure institutional change and social welfare The main elements include analysis of the emergence of the socialist economic model its adaptations through the twentieth century discussion of the 1990s market transition reforms post 2008 crisis development and the social and economic diversity in the region today With an appreciation for country specifics the book also considers the urgent problems of social policy poverty income inequality and labor migration Transition Economies will aid students researchers and policy makers working on the problems of comparative economics economic development economic history economic systems transition international political economy as well as specialists in post Soviet and Central and Eastern European regional studies

Economic Transition in Central and Eastern Europe S. Motamen-Samadian, 2006-06-06 This book is a collection of studies that examine the path of transition of central and south eastern European countries the implications of EU enlargement for the acceding countries and the remaining European countries yet to join It also discusses reactions of eastern European stock markets to news of financial crisis in emerging markets
