commercialism has existed in our schools for over a century the corporate invasion of our schools reached unprecedented heights in the 1990s and 2000s after two decades of federal funding cuts and an increasing tendency to apply business models to the education system Constant cutbacks have left school trustees administrators teachers and parents with difficult decisions about how to finance programs and support students Meanwhile studies on the impact of advertising and consumer culture on children make clear that the effects are harmful both to the individual child and the broader culture Captive Audience explores this compelling history of branding the classroom in Canada Learning to School Jennifer Wallner,2014-05-27 Among countries in the industrialized world Canada is the only one without a national department of education national standards for education and national regulations for elementary or secondary schooling For many observers the system seems impractical and almost incoherent But despite a total lack of federal oversight the educational policies of all ten provinces are very similar today Without intervention from Ottawa the provinces have fashioned what amounts to a de facto pan Canadian system Learning to School explains how and why the provinces have achieved this unexpected result Beginning with the earliest provincial education policies and taking readers right up to contemporary policy debates the book chronicles how through learning and cooperation the provinces gradually established a country wide system of public schooling A rich and ambitious work of scholarship it will appeal to readers seeking fresh insights on Canadian federalism education policy and policy diffusion Canadian Books in Print.
