Purdy,Christopher M. Span,2015-08-01 In 1978 V P Franklin and James D Anderson co edited New Perspectives on Black Educational History For Franklin Anderson and their contributors there were glaring gaps in the historiography of Black education that each of the essays began to fill with new information or fresh perspectives There have been a number of important studies on the history of African American education in the more than three decades since Franklin and Anderson published their volume that has pushed the field forward Scholars have redefined the views of Black southern schools as simply inferior demonstrated the active role Blacks had in creating and sustaining their schools sharpened our understanding of Black teachers and educational leaders role in educating Black students and themselves with professional development provided a better understanding and recognition of the struggles in the North particularly in urban and metropolitan areas expanded our thinking about school desegregation and community control and broadened our understanding of Black experiences and activism in higher education and private schools Our volume will highlight and expand upon the changes to the field over the last three and a half decades In the shadow of 60th anniversary of Brown v Board of Education and the 50th anniversary of the 1964 Civil Rights Act contributors expand on the way African Americans viewed and experienced a variety of educational policies including segregation and desegregation and the varied options they chose beyond desegregation The volume covers both the North and South in the 19th and 20th centuries Contributors explore how educators administrators students and communities responded to educational policies in various settings including K 12 public and private schooling and higher education A significant contribution of the book is showcasing the growing and concentrated work in the era immediately following the Brown decision Finally scholars consider the historian's engagement with recent history contemporary issues future directions methodology and teaching     Encyclopedia of African-American Education

Schooling Citizens Hilary J. Moss, 2010-04-15

While white residents of antebellum Boston and New Haven forcefully opposed the education of black residents their counterparts in slaveholding Baltimore did little to resist the establishment of African American schools Such discrepancies Hilary Moss argues suggest that white opposition to black education was not a foregone conclusion Through the comparative lenses of these three cities she shows why opposition erupted where it did across the United States during the same period that gave rise to public education As common schooling emerged in the 1830s providing white children of all classes and ethnicities with the opportunity to become full fledged citizens it redefined citizenship as synonymous with whiteness This link between school and American identity Moss argues increased white hostility to black education at the same time that it spurred African Americans to demand public schooling as a means of securing status as full and equal members of society Shedding new light on the efforts of black Americans to learn independently in the face of white attempts to withhold opportunity Schooling Citizens narrates a previously untold chapter in the thorny history of America s educational inequality

Higher Education for African Americans before the Civil Rights Era, 1900-1964 Marybeth Gasman, Roger L. Geiger, 2012-08-14 This volume examines the evolution of higher education opportunities for African Americans in the early and mid twentieth century It contributes to understanding how African Americans overcame great odds to obtain advanced education in their own institutions how they asserted themselves to gain control over those institutions and how they persisted despite discrimination and intimidation in both northern and southern universities Following an introduction by the editors are contributions by Richard M Breaux Louis Ray Lauren Kientz Anderson Timothy Reese Cain Linda M Perkins and Michael Fultz Contributors consider the expansion and elevation of African American higher education Such progress was made against heavy odds the separate but equal policies of the segregated South less overt but pervasive racist attitudes in the North and legal obstacles to obtaining equal rights African American Educators Elizabeth Massie,2014-09-02 Without education it s very difficult to make the most of your talents and abilities But for much of American history black people couldn t get an education In many places it was against the law for slaves to learn to read and write Despite this many brave slaves found a way to learn Some taught themselves Others sneaked to schools held late at night Even after slavery was ended in 1865 African Americans continued to be treated unfairly It was still a struggle for them to get an education African American educators stepped up to make a difference They faced hardship They often worked for very little pay or for no pay at all These educators built schools They taught their students and stood up for equal rights They proved that a person s race has nothing to do with his or her ability Race and Education William Henry Watkins,James H. Lewis,Victoria Chou,2001 This book is comprised of fifteen in depth research based essays in which noted educators discuss the history politics challenges and progress of the education of African Americans Historical Perspectives on the Education of Black Children Harry Morgan,1995-06-30 The African American heritage is interwoven throughout the history of the United States but few educators are prepared to teach children about the events that shaped the African American experience Most of the stories about slavery the days when it was illegal to teach black children to read and when blacks were not allowed to vote or own land are part of the remembered oral history of black families Morgan retells American history from the point of view of the events that effected blacks the Great Depression the WPA and the federal policies that led to current Head Start programs school integration in the 1950s and the Civil Rights Movement in the 1960s the War on Poverty and the IQ controversy He shows how Aesop and the teachings of Socrates and Aristotle established the philosophical traditions perpetuated by the great black educators W E B DuBois and Booker T Washington with the purpose of providing black children with a better understanding of their heritage their importance in American history and their place in the world Educational Reconstruction Hilary N. Green,2016-04-01 Tracing the first two decades of state funded African American schools Educational Reconstruction addresses the ways in which black Richmonders black Mobilians and their white allies created developed and sustained a system of African American schools following the Civil War Hilary Green proposes a new chronology in understanding postwar African American education examining how urban African Americans demanded quality public schools from their new city and state partners Revealing the significant gains made after the departure of the Freedmen s Bureau this study reevaluates African American higher education in terms of developing a cadre of public school educator activists and highlights the centrality of urban African American protest in shaping educational decisions and policies in their respective cities and states Learning While Black Janice E. Hale,2001-12-04 In Learning While Black

Janice Hale argues that educators must look beyond the cliches of urban poverty and teacher training to explain the failures of public education with regard to black students Why Hale asks simply are black students not being educated as well as white students Hale goes beyond finger pointing to search for solutions Closing the achievement gap of African American children she writes does not involve better teacher training or more parental involvement The solution lies in the classroom in the nature of the interaction between the teacher and the child And the key she argues is the instructional vision and leadership provided by principals To meet the needs of diverse learners the school must become the heart and soul of a broad effort the coordinator of tutoring and support services provided by churches service clubs fraternal organizations parents and concerned citizens Calling for the creation of the beloved community envisioned by Dr Martin Luther King Jr Hale outlines strategies for redefining the school as the Family and the broader community as the Village in which each child is too precious to be left behind In this book I am calling for the school to improve traditional instructional practices and create culturally salient instruction that connects African American children to academic achievement The instruction should be so delightful that the children love coming to school and find learning to be fun and exciting Janice Hale
