FINANCIAL MANAGEMENT

NATURE, PURPOSE AND SCOPE OF FINANCIAL MANAGEMENT

NATURE OF FINANCIAL MANAGEMENT

Financial management also referred to as managerial finance, corporate finance, and business finance is a decision making process concerned with planning, acquiring, and utilizing funds in a manner that achieves the firm's desired goals.

• It is also described as the process for and the analysis of making financial decisions in the business context.

• It is a part of a larger discipline called FINANCE which is a body of facts, principles, and theories relating to raising and using money by individuals, businesses, and governments.

THE GOAL OF FINANCIAL MANAGEMENT

• GENERAL GOAL-The general goal of financial management is to make money and add value for the owners.

• SPECIFIC GOAL-The financial manager in a business enterprise must make a decision for the owners of the firm. He must act in the owners' or shareholders' best interest by making decisions that increase the value of the firm or the value of the stock.

• In conclusion, the main goal of financial management is "The goal of financial management is to maximize the current value per share of the existing stock or ownership in a business firm."

• Because the goal of management is to maximize the value of the share(s), there is a need to learn how to identify investments, arrangements and distribute satisfactory amount of dividends or share in the profits that favorably impact the value of share(s).

SCOPE OF FINANCIAL MANAGEMENT

• Traditionally, financial management is primarily concerned with acquisition, financing and management of assets of business concern in order to maximize the wealth of the firm for its owners. The basic responsibility of the Finance Manager is to acquire funds needed by the firm and investing those funds in profitable ventures that will maximize the firm's wealth, as well as, generating returns to the business concern.

Financial Management looks into the following functions that a financial manager of a business firm will perform:

1. Procurement of short term as well as long term funds from financial institutions.
2. Mobilization of funds through financial instruments such as equity shares, debentures, bonds, notes and so forth.
3. Compliance with legal and regulatory provisions relating to funds procurement, use and distribution as well as coordination of the finance function with the accounting function.

• In view of modern approach, the Finance Manager is expected to analyze the business firm and determine the following:

- a. The total funds requirements of the firm,
- b. The assets or resources to be acquired and
- c. The best pattern of financing the assets.

TYPES OF FINANCIAL DECISIONS

All these decisions aim to maximize the shareholders' wealth through maximization of the firm's wealth.

1. Investment Decisions

- The investment decisions are those which determine how scarce or limited resources in terms of funds of the business firms are committed to projects.
- Generally, the firm should select only those capital investment proposals whose net present value is positive and the rate of return exceeding the marginal cost of capital.

• It should also consider the profitability of each individual proposal that will contribute overall profitability of the firm and lead to the creation of wealth.

2. Financing Decisions

• Financing decisions assert the mix of debt and equity chosen to finance investments should maximize the value of investments made.

The finance decisions should consider the cost of finance available in different forms and the risks attached to it.

3. Dividend Decisions

- The dividend decision is concerned with the determination of quantum of profits to be distributed to the owners, the frequency of such payments and the amounts to be retained by the firm. The dividend distribution policies and retention of profits will have ultimate effect on the firm's wealth.

SUMMARY

To summarize, the basic objective of the investment, financing and dividend decisions is to maximize the firm's wealth. If the firm enjoys the stability and growth, its share prices in the market will improve and will lead to capital appreciation of shareholders' investment and ultimately maximize the shareholders' wealth.

SIGNIFICANCE OF FINANCIAL MANAGEMENT

Broad Applicability-The principles of finance are applicable wherever there is cash flow. The concept of cash flow is one of the central elements of financial analysis, planning, control, and resource allocate decisions. Cash flow is important because the financial health of the firm depends on its ability to generate sufficient amounts of cash to pay its employees, suppliers, creditors, and owners.

Reduction of Chances of Failure-A firm having latest technology, sophisticated machinery, high caliber marketing and technical experts, and so forth may still fail unless its finances are managed on sound principles of financial management. The strength of business lies in its financial discipline. Therefore, finance function is treated as primordial which enables the other functions like production, marketing, purchase, and personnel to be effective in the achievement of organizational goal and objectives.

Measurement of Return on Investment-Anybody who invests his money will expect to earn a reasonable return on his investment. The owners of business try to maximize their wealth. Financial management studies the risk-return perception of the owners and the time value of money. It considers the amount of cash flows expected to be generated for the benefit of owners, the timing of these cash flows. The greater the time and risk associated with the expected cash flow, the greater is the rate of return required by the owners.

RELATIONSHIP BETWEEN FINANCIAL MANAGEMENT ACCOUNTING AND ECONOMICS

Financial Management and Accounting

In many organizations accounting and finance functions intertwined and the finance function is often considered as a part of the functions of the accountant. Accounting function discharges the function of systematic recording of transactions relating to the firm's activities in the books of accounts and summarizing the same for presentation in the financial statements.

The finance manager will make use of the accounting information in the analysis and review of the firm's business position in decision making.

• Financial management is the key function and many firms prefer to centralize the function to keep constant control on the finances of the firm.

Financial Management and Economics

• Microeconomics deals with the economic decisions of individuals and firms. The concept of microeconomics helps the finance manager in decisions like pricing, taxation, determination of capacity and operating levels, break-even analysis, volume-cost profit analysis, capital structure decisions, dividend distribution decisions, profitable product mix decisions, fixation of levels of inventory, setting the optimum cash balance, pricing of warrants and options, interest rate structure, present value of cash flows, and so forth.

• Macroeconomics looks at the economy as a whole in which a particular business concern is operating. Macroeconomics provides insight into policies by which and investing      Accounting for Value in Marx's Capital Robert Bryer, 2017-09-07 Many scholars discuss Marx's Capital from many perspectives but Accounting for Value uniquely advances and defends an accounting interpretation of his theory of value that he used it to explain capitalists accounts. It confirms and builds on the Temporal Single System Interpretation's refutation of the charge that Marx's illustration of the transformation from values to prices is inconsistent and its defense of his Law of the Tendency of the Rate of Profit. It rejects other interpretations by showing that only a temporal single system interpretation is consistent with Marx's accounting. The book shows that Marx became seriously interested in accounts from the late 1850s during an important period in the development of his critique of political economy, asking Engels for information and explanations. Examining their letters in the context of Marx's evolving work, it argues and supports the hypothesis that discovering he could explain them with his theory of value gave him the breakthrough he needed to decide how to present his work and explains why in 1867 he decided to change its title to Capital. Marx's explanations of capitalist accounting, it concludes, amount to an accounting theory that explains how individual capitalists and the capital market use what is for many the invisible hand of accounting to control the production and distribution of surplus value. Marx claimed his theory of value was a work of science, a critique of political economy that would deliver a theoretical blow from which the bourgeoisie would never recover. He failed, critics argue, because his critique depends on hypothetical entities which we cannot directly observe, such as value and abstract labour, surplus value, which means his theory is not open to empirical refutation. The book, however, argues that he used his theory of value to explain the phenomenal forms of profit, rate of profit, etc., by explaining the observable accounting principles and practices capitalists use to calculate and control them, in which, as he said, we can glimpse the determination of value by socially necessary labor time, which experience could have refuted.
