Firepower 2000 Vol 1 Hightech Battlefield Land Warfare In The Information Age:

Popular Mechanics, 2000-01 Popular Mechanics inspires instructs and influences readers to help them master the modern world Whether it s practical DIY home improvement tips gadgets and digital technology information on the newest cars or the latest breakthroughs in science PM is the ultimate guide to our high tech lifestyle Forging Apollo's Golden Bow: Long-Range Precision Fires in Future High Intensity Combat, 1996 Throughout the history of warfare there have been periods when technological developments have dramatically albeit temporarily affected the balance between firepower and maneuver on the tactical battlefield Recent advances in information age technology have stimulated a renewal of the argument for an ascendancy of fires This idea envisions military forces that would rely primarily upon long range precision fires to defeat an enemy before ground maneuver forces make contact The military has entered a new period of dialogue focusing on the proper balance between firepower and maneuver The time is right for the United States Army to reexamine these new capabilities and determine the optimum balance between firepower and maneuver for the ground force of the next century This monograph examines historical tactics and doctrine from World War I and the U S Army s Pentomic Era to determine why these previous attempts to rely primarily on firepower failed The monograph then explores current concepts that seek to employ information age technology to enable long range precision fires to destroy enemy forces while using maneuver forces to exploit firepower s success A survey of potential vulnerabilities within this type of tactic assists in ascertaining the viability of an ascendancy of fires Finally this monograph determines if any of the historical reasons for failure of firepower ascendancy are still relevant for future information age high intensity warfare This monograph concludes that emerging technology may indeed enable America s Army to effectively employ long range precision fires However historical situations wherein dominating firepower occurred without effective ground maneuver indicate that firepower alone is insufficient to lead to decisive victory Technology and the 21st Century Battlefield Charles J. Dunlap (Jr.), 1999

In Athena's Camp John Arquilla, David Ronfeldt, 1997-10-07 The information revolution which is as much an organizational as a technological revolution is transforming the nature of conflict across the spectrum from open warfare to terrorism crime and even radical social activism The era of massed field armies is passing because the new information and communications systems are increasing the lethality of quite small units that can call in deadly precise missile fire almost anywhere anytime In social conflicts the Internet and other media are greatly empowering individuals and small groups to influence the behavior of states Whether in military or social conflicts all protagonists will soon be developing new doctrines strategies and tactics for swarming their opponents with weapons or words as circumstances require Preparing for conflict in such a world will require shifting to new forms of organization particularly the versatile hardy all channel network This shift will prove difficult for states and professional militaries that remain bastions of hierarchy bound to resist institutional redesign They will make the shift as they realize that information and knowledge are becoming the key elements of power

This implies among other things that Mars the old brute force god of war must give way to Athena the well armed goddess of wisdom Accepting Athena as the patroness of this information age represents a first step not only for preparing for future conflicts but also for preventing them From Gettysburg to the Gulf and Beyond: Coping With Revolutionary Technological Change in Land Warfare, 1993 Today at the close of the twentieth century technology is changing at a pace without precedence in human history One day s marvel becomes a necessity of ordinary life the next Rapid technological change permeates the whole of human existence exhausting our mental ability to comprehend and cope In the military realm we have won the most technologically sophisticated war ever fought With lightning speed high tech weaponry annihilated a massive Iraqi force while the world watched minute by minute from its living rooms leading to a fundamental question of critical importance to the armed services and the nation How does our military as an institution deal with technological change How well have we done it in the past and how well are we prepared to do it in the future What approach should we use How do we even frame the issues Herein lies the subject of this paper Readers who seek exciting acronym spiced accounts of futuristic battles fought with their favorite high tech weaponry are encouraged to look elsewhere The issue here is much more mundane and much more important than specific applications of technology it is rather our basic ability to comprehend the total impact of technology on warfare If however you suspect this issue is dull and uninspiring stuff let me conjure up a few mental images for you

Firepower in Limited War Robert H. Scales, 1994 Examines how the United States can employ its massive high tech firepower in an effective manner when future conflicts are likely to be limited and of low intensity

Synchronizing Airpower and Firepower in the Deep Battle R Laughbaum, 2025-05-22 The concept of deep battle was formally introduced to US war fighters during the early 1980s through the US Army s AirLand Battle doctrine As envisioned by Air Force and Army leaders the initial purpose for the deep battle was to delay and weaken Soviet second and follow on echelons during a European conventional war Within the AirLand Battle construct the Air Force had responsibility for synchronizing deep operations and for employing air interdiction against Soviet maneuver forces to set the conditions for victory in the decisive close battle The fire support coordination line FSCCL normally positioned at field artillery maximum range from the forward line of troops FLOT separated the Air Force s deep operations from the Army s close battle During the late 1980s the Army began fielding a potent deep battle capability of its own Concurrently Army doctrine assigned to the ground force commander responsibility for synchronizing deep operations with the close battle This work has been selected by scholars as being culturally important and is part of the knowledge base of civilization as we know it This work was reproduced from the original artifact and remains as true to the original work as possible Therefore you will see the original copyright references library stamps as most of these works have been housed in our most important libraries around the world and other notations in the work This work is in the public domain in the United States of America and possibly other nations Within the United States you may freely copy and distribute this work as no entity individual or corporate has a
