The book, "Finding the Household: Conceptual and Methodological Issues" is the fifth volume in the series entitled "Women and the Household in Asia". The series consisted of papers presented at the Regional Conference for Asia on Women and the Household held in New Delhi from 27-31 January 1985. The present series represented the sub-theme "Household as a Unit of Data Collection". Thirteen papers were presented in the Conference on the sub-theme, ten of which have been compiled and published in this volume.

Seven of the papers concerned India. Three papers, each on the Philippines, Korea and Vietnam, were included to justify the Asian content of the Conference.

The objectives of the book have been explained in the Preface and the Introduction. Leela Dube, the series editor, has in the Preface described the examination of the efficacy and appropriateness of the household as a unit of data collection and analysis for understanding gender differentiation, as one of the important objectives of the volume. K. Saradamoni, the volume editor, has in the Introduction pointed out that data used in planning, development and welfare schemes are increasingly derived from household surveys; but research and studies on women reveal that concepts and definitions applied in the surveys distort, minimize and miss women's role and status and contribute to the invisibility of their work and life.
