it without thinking Once you know where the notes sit on the fingerboard they don't move It's like bringing light into the dark forest After you have learned the basics you must decide two things What fingering will make the notes flow more musically and where should the note be played to create the tonal quality the song requires The goal is to allow yourself to know your fingerboard so intrinsically and completely that without having to process the information you can flow with the music This is why the brain benefits from taking violin and music lessons The School Musician Director and Teacher ,1971
