Fire Weed:

Fireweed Lauren Haddad, 2025-04-29 In the mowed down industrial north of Prince George Canada white trash housewife Jenny Hayes shares a fence with the only First Nations woman in the neighborhood Rachelle and her two little girls Jenny desperately wants a child and can't understand why Rachelle with her trash pocked and overgrown yard should have what Jenny wants most in the world But Jenny tries to suppress her judgment as she has with her mother Fi a cougar who chain smokes cigarettes instead of changing the full diapers of her boyfriend's kids and Missy her best friend with Juicy Couture pulled tight over her baby bump and an unfurnished McMansion Instead she volunteers to babysit Rachelle's girls brushing hair folding laundry and ignoring the stilettos tucked under the bed in Rachelle's disheveled home But when two young women the strawberry blonde blue eyed Beth Tremblay and Jenny's own neighbor Rachelle disappear along Highway 16 only Beth's face and name are plastered on billboards and broadcasted over the air Rachelle's daughters are carted off by the state and Jenny takes it upon herself to investigate After all Jenny thinks who else is looking for her pariah of a neighbor Jenny stutters through police encounters asks the people living on the Rez all the wrong questions and ultimately faces alongside the reader the complicated motive behind her investigation With great awareness and care Lauren Haddad's portrait of Jenny brilliantly exposes first our impulse to seek the myths as opposed to the realities of race class and gender oppression in rural communities and the consequences when our concern for others is clouded by self preoccupation Gripping unflinching and rebellious Fireweed begs the question just how good are our good intentions

Fireweed Evangelism Elizabeth Geitz, 2004-11-01 Fireweed always the first flower to spring up and bloom in ruins and burned over places is Elizabeth Geitz's metaphor for evangelism that comes from the heart It is the motivation that makes some Christians eager to welcome the stranger and invite people into their churches while others hang back In this prequel to Entertaining Angels Hospitality Programs for the Caring Church Geitz explores this missing ingredient in Christian hospitality reminding us that in a multi faith world where Christians wish to honor the validity of other religious paths we may hesitate to talk about the uniqueness of Jesus Christ Her book helps both individuals and communities to understand what holds them back from evangelism and discover the path that is right for them This book unfolds in three sections In the first we look at the factors that inhibit our evangelism including the awareness that we live in a pluralistic world and do not wish to offend those with other faith commitments Geitz offers both reflection and exercises to help us discover our own motivation for evangelism Part 2 addresses the question of context Where does evangelism take place and for whose benefit To what sort of communities do we invite those to whom we reach out Section 3 focuses on the uniqueness of Christian hospitality and describes the nuts and bolts of newcomer ministry and the programs needed to sustain Christian hospitality in a pluralistic society It includes workshop and group process material
