

The Five Aggregates

Understanding Theravāda Psychology and Soteriology

Mathieu Boisvert

If Buddhism denies a permanent self, how does it perceive identity?

According to Buddhist texts the entire universe, including the individual, is made up of different phenomena, which Buddhism classifies into different categories: what we conventionally call a "person" can be understood in terms of five aggregates, the sum of which must not be taken for a permanent entity, since beings are nothing but an amalgam of ever-changing phenomena. Although the aggregate's are only a "convenient fiction," the Buddha nevertheless made frequent use of the aggregate scheme when asked to explain the elements at work in the individual.

In this study Mathieu Boisvert presents a detailed analysis of the five aggregates (pañcakkhandha) and establishes how the Theravāda tradition views their interaction. He clarifies the fundamentals of Buddhist psychology by providing a rigorous examination of the nature and interrelation of each of the aggregates and by establishing, for the first time, how the function of each of these aggregates chains beings to the cycle of birth, death and rebirth the - theory of dependent origination (paṭiccasamuppāda). Boisvert contends that without a thorough understanding of the five aggregates, we cannot grasp the liberation process at work within the individual, who is, after all, simply an amalgam of the five aggregates.

The Five Aggregates represents an important and original contribution to Buddhist studies and will be of great interest to all scholars and students of Buddhism.

Mathieu Boisvert is a Professor of South-Asian Traditions at the Université du Québec à Montréal and the editor of Un Monde de religions (forthcoming).

Religious Rivalries in the Early Roman Empire and the Rise of Christianity Leif E. Vaage,2006-04-21 Religious Rivalries in the Early Roman Empire and the Rise of Christianity discusses the diverse cultural destinies of early Christianity early Judaism and other ancient religious groups as a question of social rivalry The book is divided into three main sections The first section debates the degree to which the category of rivalry adequately names the issue s that must be addressed when comparing and contrasting the social success of different religious groups in antiquity The second is a critical assessment of the common modern category of mission to describe the inner dynamic of such a process it discusses the early Christian apostle Paul the early Jewish historian Josephus and ancient Mithraism The third section of the book is devoted to the rise of Christianity primarily in response to the similarly titled work of the American sociologist of religion Rodney Stark While it is not clear that any of these groups imagined its own success necessarily entailing the elimination of others it does seem that early Christianity had certain habits both of speech and practice which made it particularly apt to succeed in the Roman Empire
