Boer, 2023-08-29 This is an open access title available under the terms of a CC BY NC ND 4.0 International licence It is free to read at Oxford Scholarship Online and offered as a free PDF download from OUP and selected open access locations For victims of persecution around the world attracting international media attention for their plight is often a matter of life and death This study takes us back to the news revolution of seventeenth century Europe when people first discovered in the press a powerful new weapon to combat religiously inspired maltreatments executions and massacres To affect and mobilize foreign audiences confessional minorities and their advocates faced an acute dilemma one that we still grapple with today how to make people care about distant suffering David de Boer argues that by answering this question they laid the foundations of a humanitarian culture in Europe As consuming news became an everyday practice for many Europeans the Dutch Republic emerged as an international hub of printed protest against religious violence De Boer traces how a diverse group of people including Waldensians refugees Huguenot ministers Savoyard office holders and many others all sought access to the Dutch printing presses in their efforts to raise transnational solidarity for their cause By generating public outrage calling out rulers and pressuring others to intervene producers of printed opinion could have a profound impact on international relations But crying out against persecution also meant navigating a fraught and dangerous political landscape marked by confessional tension volatile alliances and incessant warfare Opinion makers had to think carefully about the audiences they hoped to reach through pamphlets periodicals and newspapers But they also had to reckon with the risk of reaching less sympathetic readers outside their target groups By examining early modern publicity strategies de Boer deepens our understanding of how people tried to shake off the spectre of religious violence that had haunted them for generations and create more tolerant societies governed by the rule of law reason and a sense of common humanity

Dynamics of Neo-Latin and the Vernacular, 2014-09-18 Dynamics of Neo Latin and the Vernacular offers a collection of studies that deal with the cultural exchange between Neo Latin and the vernacular and with the very cultural mobility that allowed for the successful development of Renaissance bilingual culture Studying a variety of multilingual issues of language and poetics of translation and transfer its authors interpret Renaissance cross cultural contact as a radically dynamic ever shifting process of making cultural meaning With renewed attention for suitable theoretical and methodological frames of reference Dynamics of Neo Latin and the Vernacular firmly resists literary history's temptation to pin down the Early Modern relationship between languages literatures and cultures in favour of stressing the sheer variety and variability of that relationship itself Contributors are Jan Bloemendal Ingrid De Smet Annet den Haan Tom Deneire Beate Hintzen David Kromhout Bettina Noak Ingrid Rowland Johanna Svensson Harm Jan van Dam Guillaume van Gemert Eva van Hooijdonk and mm Y ksel National Union Catalog , Includes entries for maps and atlases The London Literary Gazette and Journal of Belles Lettres, Arts, Sciences, Etc ,1836
