J. Deacon, Janette Deacon, 1999 The Stone Age is now beginning to be recognised as vital in establishing who we are and where we have come from This period has long been neglected Lithic Materials and Paleolithic Societies Brian Adams, Brooke Blades, 2009-05-06 Lithic Materials and Paleolithic Societies provides a detailed examination of the Paleolithic procurement and utilization of the most durable material in the worldwide archaeological record The volume addresses sites ranging in age from some of the earliest hominin occupations in eastern and southern Africa to late Pleistocene and post Pleistocene occupations in North American and Australia The Early Paleolithic in India and the Near East the Middle Paleolithic in Europe and the Late Paleolithic in Europe and eastern Asia are also considered The authors include established researchers who provide important synthetic statements updated with new information Recent data are reported often by younger scholars who are becoming respected members of the international research community The authors represent research traditions from nine countries and therefore provide insight into the scholarly present as well as the Paleolithic past Attempts are frequently made to relate lithic procurement and utilization to the organization of societies and even broader concerns of hominin behaviour The volume re evaluates existing interpretations in some instances by updating previous work of the authors and offers provocative new interpretations that at times call into question some basic assumptions of the Paleolithic This book will be invaluable reading for advanced students and researchers in the fields of palaeolithic archaeology geoarchaeology and anthropology Ballynahatty Barrie Hartwell, Sarah Gormley, Catriona Brogan, Caroline Malone, 2023-08-15 Just six miles from the center of Belfast County Down on the plateau of Ballynahatty above the River Lagan is one of Ireland's great Neolithic henge monuments the 200 m wide Giant's Ring For over a thousand years this area was the focus of intense funerary ritual seemingly designed to send the dead to their ancestors and secure the land for the living Scattered through the fields to the north and west of the Ring are flat cemeteries standing stones tombs cists and ring barrows ancient monuments that were leveled by the plough when the land was enclosed in the 18th and 19th centuries A great 90 m long timber enclosure with an elaborate entrance and inner temple was first observed through crop marks in aerial photos Excavation of the site between 1990 1999 revealed a complex structure composed of over 400 postholes many over 2 m deep This was a building in the grand style elegantly designed to control space views and access to an inner sanctum containing a platform for exposure of the dead By 2550 BC the timber temple had been swept away in a massive conflagration and the remains dismantled Ballynahatty was one of the last great public ceremonial enterprises known to have been constructed by the Neolithic farmers in Northern Ireland an enterprise proclaiming their enigmatic religion ancestral rights and territorial aspirations This report reconstructs the remarkable building complex and explains the sophistication and organization of its construction and use The report sets the site and excavation in the wider development of the Ballynahatty landscape and its study to the present day Petroleum Age ,1921 Time Briton Hadden, Henry Robinson Luce, 1942 Caterpillar Chronicle: History of the Greatest Earthmovers Eric C.
