Taking cues from Kiyoshi Kurosawa and Karlheinz Stockhausen the essay Dead Stick Landing develops Kanemura's theory of the moving image as mechanical system solely governed by an on off switch while Essay 02 develops these ideas into a consideration of cinematic time and the experience of boredom in cinema as the result of a truthful loyalty expressed to machines and not to stories The essays are accompanied by an extensive two part interview with Italian photographer Marco Mazzi touching upon topics ranging from the technical aspects of Kanemura's equipment the concept of non editing and the destruction of the frame to the similarity between Mao's dialectics and the camera the presence of the human figure as trace and the politics of photographing Tokyo Osamu Kanemura was born in 1964 in Tokyo Japan In the 1980s after performing as a punk rock musician he entered the film school Image Forum in Tokyo where he made several 16 mm experimental films In 1990 he entered the Tokyo College of Photography and before graduating in 1993 he was invited to the Photography Biennale in Rotterdam Netherlands Since then he has held numerous solo exhibitions and has participated in various group shows in Japan and abroad His photographs are found in public collections including the Museum of Modern Art MoMA the Art Institute of Chicago the National Museum of Modern Art Tokyo and the Yokohama Museum of Art Besides his well recognized black and white photographs of cityscapes Kanemura also continues to work on videos and moving images
