Goodbye Sally:

Limits of Love Gilbert Meilaender, 2010-11-01 Reflecting upon some problems of the moral life Gilbert Meilaender considers their difficulties within a vision that accentuates not only the limits but also the promise of the Christian story Created by God as finite beings we make particular attachments Redeemed by God for a community transcending nature and history our love always carries us beyond the special bonds of time and place We live therefore with a sense of permanent tension If this tension heightens our sense of the perplexities of life it should not free us from the obligation to probe clarify and where we can resolve some of those difficulties The author holds that theological ethics must clarify the direction for growth and development within the Christian life He undertakes such analysis emphasizing throughout the limits of the human condition the importance of our nature as embodied persons and the danger and pretension in some of our attempts to take control of and master human life This Christian vision is developed in chapters that explore a range of moral problems such as abortion artificial reproduction euthanasia care for defective infants provision of artificial nutrition and hydration and marital and political community These are throughout however theological explorations Taken together they illumine not only particular problems of the moral life but a vision of life classically Christian in its conception humane in its care for particular bonds of attachment and modest in its recognition of moral limits on our ability to seek the good Meilaender has developed a broad recognition both among scholars and students of ethics and among interested general readers He has the capacity to throw fresh angles of vision on complex problems so as to help both the sophisticated and the uninitiated reader to think more penetratingly about moral questions Goodbye, Sally Rhona Martin, 1987

Heaven Knows I'm Miserable Now Andrew Collins, 2012-12-31 Higher education comes at exactly the right time in the twilight of your teens you're just starting to coagulate as a human being to pull away from parental influence and find your own feet What better than three years in which to explore the inner you establish a feasible worldview and maybe get on Blockbusters After an idyllic provincial 1970s childhood the 1980s took Andrew Collins to London art school and the classic student experience Crimping his hair casting aside his socks and sporting fingerless gloves he became Andy Kollins purveyor of awful poetry disciple of moany music and wannabe political activist What follows is a universal tale of trainee hedonism girl trouble wasted grants and begging letters to parents A synth soundtracked rite of passage that s often painfully funny it traces one teenager s metamorphosis from sheltered suburban innocent to semi mature metropolitan male through the pretensions and confusions of trying to stand alone for the first time in your own kung fu pumps in a big bad city The Crooner M.L.
