Solution Focused Interactions in Nursing S.W. Smith, 2021-01-29 Nursing is about growth yet it spends so much time focusing on disease and entropy While the nursing role is expanding into advanced practice roles and twenty first century nursing is almost unrecognisable compared to its nineteenth century roots at the heart of nursing is growth Sometimes called caring growth requires nurturing and while it is difficult to define without it nurses are merely medical technicians In the context of nursing health is about change change from a less healthy state to a more healthy state and the nurse s role is to promote that change whenever possible However change is difficult we are creatures of habit afraid of change and preferring the illusion of safety with the devil we know rather than the devil we don t know However when someone is ready to change they have already grown This book combines the author s twenty five years of experience in Solution Focused Interactions and empirical evidence derived from his PhD research to argue that Solution Focused Interactions provide a means for nurses in all domains of nursing and midwifery to provide care that promotes growth and change in the people they work with while restoring and maintaining their enthusiasm for practice This book serves as an eminently practical introduction to how Solution Focused Interactions can be used across nursing practice making use of transcripts and case studies to illustrate the ways in which nurses can help their patients to grow and change while also growing and changing themselves

Algorithms Are Not Enough Herbert L. Roitblat, 2020-10-13 Why a new approach is needed in the quest for general artificial intelligence Since the inception of artificial intelligence we have been warned about the imminent arrival of computational systems that can replicate human thought processes Before we know it computers will become so intelligent that humans will be lucky to kept as pets And yet although artificial intelligence has become increasingly sophisticated with such achievements as driverless cars and humanless chess playing computer science has not yet created general artificial intelligence In Algorithms Are Not Enough Herbert Roitblat explains how artificial general intelligence may be possible and why a robocalypse is neither imminent nor likely Existing artificial intelligence Roitblat shows has been limited to solving path problems in which the entire problem consists of navigating a path of choices finding specific solutions to well structured problems Human problem solving on the other hand includes problems that consist of ill structured situations including the design of problem solving paths themselves These are insight problems and insight is an essential part of intelligence that has not been addressed by computer science Roitblat draws on cognitive science including psychology philosophy and history to identify the essential features of intelligence needed to achieve general artificial intelligence Roitblat describes current computational approaches to intelligence including the Turing Test machine learning and neural networks He identifies building blocks of natural intelligence including perception analogy ambiguity common sense and creativity General intelligence can create new representations to solve new problems but current computational intelligence cannot The human brain like the computer uses algorithms but general intelligence he argues is more than algorithmic processes
