Gothic Dreams The Architecture Of William Critchlow Harris 1854-1913:

Gothic Revival Worldwide Timothy Brittain-Catlin, Jan De Maeyer, Martin Bressani, 2017-01-18 Pugin's global influence on church architecture and material reform. The year 2012 marked the bicentenary of the gothic revival architect A W N Pugin. His influence as a designer not only spread fast globally but also played a leading part in the transformation of material culture from the mid nineteenth century onwards. Pugin's work has been comprehensively reevaluated over the last decade. In this volume sixteen leading scholars from across the globe discuss Pugin's direct influence on church architecture and furnishing. Beautifully illustrated with a large selection of new photography. Gothic Revival Worldwide the successor to the volume Gothic Revival published in 2000 reveals how Pugin's ideas played a profound role in the changing face of material reform in church architecture as an expression of the evolving identity of the churches across the world from North America to Mongolia and the South Pacific. However behind the public face of design architectural life in Canada during the 1880s and 1890s was in turmoil. The Canadian public had lost confidence in its designers, students were forced to study abroad to secure a first class education, professional rivalry was unscrupulous, architectural competitions a scandal. American architects and their architecture were the fashion. These things changed but not before the world of the Canadian architect had been turned on its head, replaced by one which resembled the world of contemporary architects with professional organisations, regulated standards, formalised education centred in the universities and the belief that Canadian architecture should reflect local climates, culture and geography. Kelly Crossman provides the first analysis of this period. Beginning with a review of the architectural milieu in Toronto and Montreal in the 1880s, he traces the rise of professionalism as an idea and architectural nationalism as a goal. His analysis is more a history of architectural ideas than a survey of forms. It places the architecture of these years in an historical and ideological context, demonstrating that it developed with its own logic in response to national and international factors. During the two decades after 1885 Canadian architects grappled with problems whose long term implications they could not have foreseen: the role of the architect in industrialised society, the need to accommodate and integrate applied science and the need to express their own and their country's personality in architectural form. By the beginning of this century they had begun to find their own

 Arguing that past scholarship has provided inadequate methodological tools for understanding ordinary housing in Canada Peter Ennals and Deryck Holdsworth present a new framework for interpreting the dwelling Canada s settlement history with its emphasis on staples exports produced few early landed elite or houses in the grand style There was however a preponderance of small owner built folk dwellings that reproduced patterns from the immigrants ancestral homes in western Europe As regional economics matured a prospering population used the house as a material means to display social achievement Whereas the elites came to reveal their status and taste through careful connoisseurship of the standard international high style an emerging middle class accomplished this through a new mode of house building that the authors describe as vernacular The vernacular dwelling selectively mimicked elements of the elite houses while departing from the older folk forms in response to new social aspirations The vernacular revolution was accelerated by a popular press that produced inexpensive how to guides and a manufacturing sector that made affordable standardized lumber and trim Ultimately the triumph of vernacular housing was the prefab house marketed by firms such as the T Eaton Company The analysis of these house making patterns are explored from the early seventeenth century to the early twentieth century Though the emphasis is on the ordinary single family dwelling the authors provide an important glimpse of counter currents such as housing for gang labour company housing and the multi occupant forms associated with urbanization The analysis is placed in the context of a careful rendering of the historical geographical context of an emerging Canadian space economy and society Bibliographic Guide to Art and Architecture New York Public Library. Art and Architecture Division,1981
