This report contributes to the debate about the quality of education and returns to education investment in Latin America and the Caribbean LCR It aims to improve our understanding of the links from investment in education and training to labor market outcomes and to provide a basis for policy choices that will strengthen future outcomes The report is organized in four main chapters Chapter 2 documents the recent downturn in education earnings premia using standard mincerian regressions based on household survey data Chapter 3 explores the underlying supply side and demand side drivers of the trends in premia It documents the recent expansion of education coverage in LCR benchmarks it against other regions and presents an in depth analysis of the relative importance of shifts in the supply and demand for skills in generating declining earnings premia Using a methodological approach first developed by Katz and Murphy it concludes that demand side changes appear to be the critical factor It also analyzes the role of institutional factors finding that minimum wages also have likely played an important role in the compression of labor earnings Chapter 4 focuses on trends in student achievement and the cost effectiveness of secondary education It analyzes trends data from the OECDs PISA survey of 15 year old children in secondary education which covered nine LCR countries in 2009 It shows that achievement is improving slowly but remains well behind the OECD It presents benchmarking evidence suggesting that LCR may be both under resourcing secondary education and also getting poor returns per dollar invested a classic low quality equilibrium Chapter 5 presents evidence on the fit between the skill set of LCR workers and the needs of the economy applying an approach first developed by Levy and Murnane in the U S A Analysis of the industrial composition of employment in four countries suggests that LCR is lagging in those industries that require relatively sophisticated new economy skills in the U S A Further evidence that cutting edge firms in LCR might be facing skill constraints comes from the hiring lags registered in enterprise surveys The Promise of Early Childhood Development in Latin America and the Caribbean Emiliana Vegas,Lucrecia Santib ez,2009-12-03 Early childhood development outcomes play an important role throughout a person s life affecting one s income earning capacity and productivity longevity health and cognitive ability The deleterious effects of poor early childhood development outcomes can be long lasting affecting school attainment employment wages criminality and social integration of adults The authors first take stock of early childhood development indicators in the region and explore access to early childhood development services for children of different backgrounds They review recent evidence on the impact of early childhood development interventions in the region and investigate more deeply a selection of programs in Latin America and the Caribbean to distill lessons related to their design implementation and institutionalization processes The book concludes with a discussion of the challenges of scaling up and presents policy options to develop national early childhood development policies and programs that may be effective and sustained over time

Development of Education and Science Policies in Latin America and the Caribbean KSKSKS,1971 At a Crossroads María Marta Ferreyra,Ciro Avitabile,Javier Botero Álvarez,Francisco Haimovich Paz,Sergio Urzúa,2017-05-10 Higher education in Latin America and the Caribbean has expanded dramatically in the past 15 years as the average gross enrollment rate has more than doubled and many new institutions and programs have been opened Although higher education access has become more equitable and higher education supply has become more varied many of the new students in the system are on average less academically ready than are their more advantaged counterparts Furthermore only half of higher education students on average complete their degree and labor market returns to higher education vary greatly across institutions and programs Thus higher education is at a crossroads today Given the region s urgency to raise productivity in a low growth fiscally constrained environment going past this crossroads requires the formation of skilled human capital fast and efficiently At a Crossroads Higher Education in Latin America and the Caribbean contributes to the discussion by studying quality variety and equity of higher education in Latin America and the Caribbean The book presents comprehensive evidence on the recent higher education expansion and evolution of higher education labor market returns Using novel data and state of the art methods it studies demand and supply drivers of the recent expansion It investigates the behavior of institutions and students and explores the unintended consequences of large scale higher education policies Framing the analysis are the singular characteristics of the higher education market and the market segmentation induced by the variety of students and institutions in the system At this crossroads a role emerges for incentives information accountability and choice

Major Project in the Field of Education in Latin America and the Caribbean Intergovernmental Regional Committee for the Major Project in the Field of Education in Latin America and the Caribbean,1993 Nonformal Education in Latin America and the Caribbean Thomas J. La Belle,1986-03-18 In the past two decades there has been a number of nonformal education programs in Latin America and the Caribbean among them literacy programs community development technical vocational training cooperatives agricultural assistance and popular education Nonformal Education and the Poor in Latin America and the Caribbean is a comprehensive overview of these programs their goals methods and actual accomplishments The book also assesses the impact these programs have had on community and individual development and behavior especially in light of political events in these regions Education in Latin America and the Caribbean Hernando Gómez Buendía,2001 Great Teachers Barbara Bruns,Javier A. Luque,2015 It documents that the average teacher in LAC loses the equivalent of one day of instructional time per week because of inadequate preparation excessive time on administration taking attendance passing out papers and a surprisingly high share of time physically absent from the classrooms where they should be teaching Teachers also make limited use of available learning materials especially those using information and communications technology ICT and are unable to keep the majority of their students engaged The book sets out the three priority lines of reform needed to produce great teachers in LAC policies to recruit better teachers programs to groom teachers and improve their skills once they are in service and stronger incentives to motivate teachers to perform their best throughout their career

Cashing in on Education Mercedes Mateo Díaz,Lourdes Rodriguez-Chamussy,2016-10-04 Investments in education across countries in Latin America and the Caribbean have transformed the lives of millions of girls and the prospects of their families and societies Unleashing the full economic potential of women is nevertheless still a curtailed issue in the region just about half of women are unable to participate in paid work The majority of the population out of the labor market is women between the ages of 24 and 45 This is the largest share of the available pool of unused human capital countries have and where mothers of young children are concentrated This book argues that more and better childcare constitutes a fundamental policy option to improve female outcomes in the labor market but countries need to pay particular attention to the design and features of such services First rate educational programs will be useless if children are not enrolled or do not attend formal education centers Through an integrated framework applied to each country and an overview of the existing evidence this book addresses the why and what questions about policy relevant instruments to achieve female labor participation Moreover this book tackles the how question contributing to the incipient evidence about factors affecting the take up of programs and demand for childcare services and other informal care arrangements Education and Development: Innovations in delivering primary education James Lynch,Celia Modgil,Sohan Modgil,1997-01-01 This volume of the series that debates the need for universal primary education is concerned with the good behaviour of would be educational innovators in developing countries The text looks at the need for a code of practice and relating that to issues of economic realism human rights sensitivity ecological responsibility and educational effectiveness Education and Society in Latin America Orlando Albornoz,1993-06-18 Both financial and political factors impede the positive role of education in social and economic development in Latin America This book argues that the inefficient operation of its education system constitutes one reason why Latin America is increasingly marginal on the world scene
