D., 2025-04-11 The purpose of this critical ethnographic study was to explore health disparities among Latina o immigrant farmworkers lived experiences A gatekeeper was used to select and inform the participants in this research study Data were collected through testimonios oral testimonies from structured interviews with eight Latina o documented undocumented immigrant farmworkers who worked in agriculture for at least three years and were over the age of eighteen There were various findings related to the health disparities experienced by Latina o immigrant farmworkers were identified a structural barriers b social barriers c socioeconomic barriers d cultural barriers and e fostering social change through lived experiences The findings corroborated the testimonios shared by participants regarding their health disparities experienced on the farms Although participants experienced inadequate working environments and health disparities on farms most explained how social environmental change has been implemented on farms throughout the years that have improved their well being However advocacy groups need to create a safe space through agency for Latina o immigrant farmworkers The study results indicated that fostering social change among Latina o immigrant farmworkers was needed to prevent health disparities for this group According to participants lived experiences there has been some improvement in their healthcare and environmental work conditions This study also found that social advocacy groups need to develop methods to create a safe space for this group Although social advocacy groups reach out to this group via radio bulletin boards and newsletters they need to take greater initiative to create welcoming environments and safer spaces The Latina o immigrant farmworker population will continue to increase in numbers and continue to contribute to agriculture in California in future years Therefore public policies affecting this group s well being must be reformed in agricultural communities to minimize health disparities

Western Education and Political Domination in Africa Magnus O. Bassey, 1999-10-30 The contribution of Western education to the creation of an African educated elite is well documented What is not equally well documented is the fact that African educated elites have used their education and the schools to perpetuate their dominance by denying the poor the knowledge necessary to protect their political and economic rights and to advance in society On the other hand educated elites in Africa make opportunities available to their own members through selective ordering legitimization of certain language forms and learning processes in schools and legitimization of elite codes and experiences to the exclusion of the histories experiences and worldviews of the poor This book highlights the processes by which the poor in Africa have been disenfranchised and marginalized through schools ascriptive mechanisms and explains why African economic development is very slow

The Changing Face of Colonial Education in Africa Peter Kallaway, 2021-07-29 The Changing Face of Colonial Education in Africa offers a detailed and nuanced perspective of colonial history based on 15 years of research that throws fresh light on the complexities of African history and the colonial world of the first half of the twentieth century It provides an analytical background to the history of education in the colonial context by balancing contributions by missionary agencies colonial government humanitarian agencies scientific experts and African agents It offers a foundation for the analysis of modern educational policy for the postcolonial state It attempts to move beyond clichés about colonial education to an understanding of the complexities of how educational policy was developed in different places at different times while giving credence to arguments that see schooling as a form of social control in the colonial environment It is essential reading for academics researchers and policymakers looking to better understand colonial education and contextualize modern developments related to the decolonizing African education It is intended to provide an essential background for policy makers by demonstrating the significance of a historical perspective for an understanding of contemporary educational challenges in Africa and elsewhere British Paternalism and Africa, 1920-1940 Penelope Hetherington, 2023-11-06 British Paternalism and Africa 1978 is a study of the beliefs and assumptions of members of the British intelligentsia who concerned themselves with British African politics in the period between the wars The journals and books published in Britain during this period were used as source material to discover the attitudes of politicians missionaries administrators and others concerning African issues In the two decades before the Second World War the debate about the future of the African colonies still seemed to be the preserve of Europeans anxious to influence British politics according to their own particular brand of paternalism It is argued that some writers still used arguments about Britain's civilizing mission while others emphasised the need for a period of reconstruction of African society to be carried out before independence could be granted Only the Marxist Leninist writers rejected doctrines which implied the necessity for continued European presence in Africa

Conflict in Africa Adda Bruemmer Bozeman, 2015-03-08 Do modern Western ideas about the nature of conflict and its resolution apply to Africa To answer this question Adda Bozeman examines conflict in Africa south of the Sahara in its many social political and cultural aspects past and present The author shows how African perspectives on war and diplomacy have evolved under the influence of nonliteracy tribalism and a concept of undifferentiated time In addition she confirms that indigenous cultural traditions are resurgent everywhere making it unlikely that African political values will become more closely aligned with those of the West The two civilizations view conflict differently and have different ways of resolving it The Africans are more at ease with conflict than their Western counterparts and they do not see war and peace as the mutually exclusive phenomena that Occidental societies hold them to be The author concludes that modern Western concepts of conflict not only do not but cannot allow for African realities Originally published in 1976 The Princeton Legacy Library uses the latest print on demand technology to again make available previously out of print books from the distinguished backlist of Princeton University Press These editions preserve the original texts of these important books while presenting them in durable paperback and hardcover editions The goal of the Princeton Legacy Library is to vastly increase access to the rich scholarly heritage found in the thousands of books published by Princeton University Press since its founding in 1905

'Manufactured' Masculinity J. A. Mangan, 2014-01-02 Manufactured Masculinity should be considered essential reading for scholars in the humanities and social sciences at every level and in all parts of the academic world It weaves together brilliantly the elements of the manufacture of masculinity in the period world famous public school system for the privileged which serviced the largest empire the world has ever known at the zenith of its control and which has had a significant influence in the formation of the modern world This authoritative study of the making of British imperial masculinity shines light on the period of Muscular Christianity Social Darwinism and Militarism as meshed ideological instruments of both power and persuasion This magisterial study reveals the extraordinary and paramount influence of games fields as the machine tools in an industrial process with the schools as workshops containing cultural conveyor belts for the production of robust committed and confident servants of empire and templates for imperial reproduction in imperial possessions. Mainly on efficient production belt playing fields of the privileged minds were moulded attitudes were constructed and bodies shaped for imperial manhood. Earlier manliness was metamorphosized, morality was redefined and militarism at the high point of imperial grandeur was an adjunct. Professor Mangan outlines this unique process of cultural conditioning with a unique range of evidence and analysis. This book was published as a special double issue of the International Journal of the History of Sport. Anthropology and Education Jacquetta H. Burnett, 1974 Research Grants Index National Institutes of Health (U.S.). Division of Research Grants, 1964 The Culture Concept in Educational Studies Neil Burtonwood, 1986 Education of Chinese Children in Britain and the USA Lornita Yuen-Fan Wong, 1992 Investigates various problems of Chinese schoolchildren in Britain and makes a comparative study with the experience of the Chinese in some American cities Health Promotion in Multicultural Populations Michael V. Kline, Robert M. Huff, 2008-06-11 The thoroughly updated Second Edition of Health Promotion in Multicultural Populations grounds readers in the understanding that health promotion programs in multicultural settings require an in depth knowledge of the cultural group being targeted. Numerous advances and improvements in theory and practice in health promotion and disease prevention HPDP are presented. Editors Michael V Kline and Robert M Huff have expanded the book to include increased attention directed to students and instructors while also continuing to provide a handbook for practitioners in the field. This book combines the necessary pedagogical features of a textbook with the scholarship found in a traditional handbook. Several new chapters have been added early in the text to provide stronger foundations for understanding the five sections that follow. The book considers five specific multicultural groups: Hispanic Latino, African American, American Indian and Alaska Native, Asian American and Pacific Islander populations. The first chapter in each of the five population group sections presents an overview devoted to understanding this special population from a variety of perspectives. The second chapter of each section explains how to assess, plan, implement and evaluate health promotion programs for each of the specific groups. The third chapter in each section highlights a case study to emphasize points made in the overview and planning chapters. The fourth chapter in each section provides Tips for working with the cultural groups described in that section. New to the Second Edition: Devotes a chapter to traditional health beliefs and traditions that can help the practitioner better understand how these beliefs and traditions can impact on Western biomedical practices. Contains a new chapter that evaluates health disparities across the U S. Presents a new chapter that examines ethical dilemmas and considerations in a multicultural context. Offers updated citations and content throughout. Gives selected Web sites of interest. Intended Audience: This book is ideal for practitioners and students in the fields of health promotion and education, public health, nursing, medicine, psychology, sociology, social work, physical therapy, radiology, technology and other allied professions. International Guide to Educational Documentation, 1955-1960 Unesco, 1963 The Social Dynamics of Development David C.
