Economics Of Contracts Theories And Applications:

The Economics of Contracts Eric Brousseau, Jean-Michel Glachant, 2002-10-17 A contract is an agreement under which two parties make reciprocal commitments in terms of their behavior to coordinate. As this concept has become essential to economics in the last 30 years, three main theoretical frameworks have emerged: incentive theory, incomplete contract theory, and transaction costs theory. These frameworks have enabled scholars to renew both the microeconomics of coordination with implications for industrial organization, labor economics, law, and economics organization design, and the macroeconomics of market decentralized economies and of the institutional framework. These developments have resulted in new analyses of a firm's strategy and State intervention, regulation of public utilities, anti-trust, public procurement, institutional design, liberalization policies, etc. Based on contributions by the leading scholars in the field, this 2002 book provides an overview of developments in these analytical currents, presents their various aspects, and proposes expanding horizons for theoreticians and practitioners.

The Economics of Contracts Eric Brousseau, Jean-Michel Glachant, 2002 A comprehensive and up-to-date synthesis of the economic analysis of contracts written by leading international scholars. The book offers a unique combination of theoretical and applied economics along with insights from law and management sciences, appealing to scholars, graduate students, and practitioners in economics, management, and law.

Economic Analysis of the DCFR Filomena Chirico, Pierre Larouche, 2010-03-12 The Economic Impact Group (EIG) was created to support the work on the DCFR with insights from law and economics. It brings together a number of leading European law and economics scholars. The Group looked at the main elements of the DCFR with two questions in mind: from an economic perspective, is it sensible to harmonize private law across Europe for this specific element, and is the solution chosen in the DCFR optimal? This book presents the outcome of the work of the EIG. It deals with key issues such as the function of contract law, contract formation, good faith, non-discrimination, specific performance versus damages, standard contractual terms, and consumer protection in contract law. The EIG complements the work of the drafters of the DCFR with insightful and critical assessments based on the well-established law and economics literature.

Research Methods for Contract Law and Scholarship Yuliya Chernykh, Joshua Karton, 2025-09-10 This is an open access title available under the terms of a CC BY-NC-ND 4.0 License. It is free to read, download, and share on Elgaronline.com. This timely and comprehensive book reveals the multifaceted nature of modern contract law and practice. Providing a broad overview of research methods in contemporary contract law, it identifies the various modes of inquiry and argumentative techniques in this dynamic field, providing theoretical depth and practical tools for legal scholarship. Yuliya Chernykh and Joshua Karton bring together a range of specialists in contract law research to address emerging topics within legal scholarship that work well with a combination of methodological approaches.

An Institutional Economics Approach to Megaproject Construction Contracts Juan Alberti, 2019-07-19 This paper shows that there is an opportunity to use an institutional economics approach to the analysis of the challenges around megaproject construction contract development It shows firstly that this approach is useful to analyze the reasonability of using particular contractual functions and clauses to deal with megaproject complexity Specifically although it is here recognized that complexity justifies the use of coordination and adaptation clauses it is also alleged that safeguarding clauses may or may not be useful as complexity rises because this depends on the relationship between maladaptation costs and transaction costs both related to the institutional environment Secondly this paper also alleges that new institutional economics is a helpful framework to analyze the prioritization of the underlying factors that determine the criteria used to assess and select contracting methods This document illustrates that the decision of the procuring method needs to be fundamentally addressed by analyzing the sponsors characteristics and objectives This is aligned with the fact that the decision regarding which contracting method to apply should consider the potential minimization of transaction costs by adjusting governance to the nature of the transaction

Ending Africa's Energy Deficit and the Law Yinka Omorogbe, Ada Ordor, 2018-02-22 With the inclusion of access to energy in the sustainable development goals the role of energy to human existence was finally recognized Yet in Africa this achievement is far from realized Omorogbe and Ordor bring together experts in their fields to ask what is stalling progress examining problems from institutions catering to vested interests at the continent s expense to a need to develop vigorous financial and fiscal frameworks The ramifications and complications of energy law are labyrinthine this volume discusses how energy deficits can burden disabled people women and children in excess of their more fortunate counterparts as well as considering environmental issues including the delicate balance between the necessity of water for drinking and cleaning and the use of water in industrial processes A pivotal work of scholarship the book poses pressing questions for energy law and international human rights

The Political Economy of Regulation in Turkey Tamer Çetin, Fuat Oğuz, 2011-01-12 The Political Economy of Regulation in Turkey brings together leading international scholars and experts on Turkey and regulatory reform to provide essential information on the recent Turkish experience and its relation to competition policy After the 1980 liberalization reform Turkey tried to introduce competition in many industries but network industries have remained as monopolies At the end of the 1990s regulatory reform was initiated and independent regulatory agencies have been established by the government Comprehensive discussions of these network industries in particular airlines electricity natural gas telecommunications and environment regulations are offered The contributors inquire how economic theory and historical analyses can enlighten the character of market processes and the role for government action in these industries and the contributions shed light on the very recent changes in the regulatory structure and important legal cases that shape the future of regulated industries This book discusses these issues in an international perspective and relates the Turkish experience to other similar countries such as in Eastern Europe and Central America This book serves as a useful guide to those who want to understand major changes in Turkey and regulatory reforms in other emerging markets making it of interest to researchers and PhD students concerned with regulatory economics the Turkish economy and economic policy in emerging markets

International Handbook of Network Industries Matthias Finger, R. W. K. Nneke, 2011

To learn about how economic and institutional forces have shaped the network industries and policies towards them read the first part of the book To discover their impacts on particular industries read the second part And to find out what has happened in particular countries read the third part I think anyone interested in network industries should read all of it The book's structure allows for many interesting comparisons across countries and sectors Richard Green University of Birmingham UK This is a very useful and comprehensive guide to reforms in network industries in communications energy transport and water It is organized by generic topic sector and region Its authors are acknowledged experts I am confident that this Handbook will be a widely read and valuable resource for many years Martin Cave London School of Economics UK Quite an accomplishment this Handbook provides by far the most comprehensive overview of the role of the private sector and competition in infrastructure industries with thoughtful surveys of each of the major infrastructure sectors and of the key regions and countries Jos G. Mezzelani Harvard University US In recent decades all infrastructures have undergone significant restructuring This worldwide phenomenon is often labelled liberalization and although expectations were high with respect to lower prices greater efficiency and innovation the expected gains have not always been fully realized This extensive state of the art Handbook provides a comprehensive overview of the various experiences of liberalization across different sectors regions and disciplines The multidisciplinary approach focuses on the economic political and institutional aspects of liberalization as well as to a lesser extent on technological issues As such it constitutes a unique contribution as this broad overview is often lost in the sector specific country focused and purely disciplinary approaches prevalent in the current literature Sectors explored include telecoms the Internet energy and transport whilst the truly global perspective incorporates unique case studies from an array of developed and developing countries including the US China India and the EU The International Handbook of Network Industries will become the definitive volume for academics researchers and students of economics political science and law interested in infrastructure regulation It will also prove a valuable guide to practitioners and policy makers involved in liberalization and competition

The Theory of Contract Law Peter

Benson,2001-02-05 Although the law of contract is largely settled there appears to be no widely accepted comprehensive theory of its main principles and doctrines or of its normative basis Contract law theory raises issues concerning the relation between law and morality the role and the importance of rights the connection between justice and economics and the distinction between private and public law This collection of six full length essays written by some of the most eminent scholars in the field explores the general theory of contract law from a variety of theoretical perspectives The volume addresses a wide range of issues both methodological and substantive in the theory and practice of contract law While the essays build upon past theoretical contributions they also attempt to take contract theory further and suggest promising ways to develop theory of contract law A Socio-Legal Theory of Money for the Digital Commercial Society Israel Cedillo Lazcano,2024-02-22 This book poses the question do we need a new body of regulations and the constitution of new regulatory agents to face the evolution of money in the Fourth Industrial Revolution After the Global Financial Crisis and the subsequent introduction of Distributed Ledger Technologies in monetary matters multiple opinions claim that we are in the middle of a financial revolution that will eliminate the need for central banks and other financial institutions to form bonds of trust on our behalf In contrast to these arguments this book argues that we are not witnessing a revolutionary expression but an evolutionary one that we can trace back to the very origin of money Accordingly the book provides academics regulators and policy makers with a multidisciplinary analysis that includes elements such as the relevance of intellectual property rights which are disregarded in the legal analysis of money Furthermore the book proposes the idea that traditional analyses on the exercise of the lex monetae ignore the role of inside monies and technological infrastructures developed and supported by the private sector as exemplified in the evolution of the cryptoassets market and in cases such as Banco de Portugal v Waterlow Sons The book puts forward a proposal for the design and regulation of new payment systems and invites the reader to look beyond the dissemination of individual Distributed Ledger Technologies such as Bitcoin

Reshaping European Gas and Electricity Industries Dominique Finon,Atle Midttun,2004-12-02 A unique and thorough investigation of the shift towards Europe wide energy regulation markets and business strategies and the extent to which energy systems have become more liberalised over this period Reshaping of European Gas and Electricity Industries analyses the key issues facing the European energy industry from a regulatory market and business perspective Current challenges within the field are also reviewed including competitive and environmental issues Liberalization Delivers timely insights into the changes facing the European energy industry in the face of deregulation Competition A direct look at business and marketing strategies in response to the influx of competition from across the globe Environment Provides powerful insights into the way environmentally based legislation has now become a key driver of the energy industry in Europe
