Social Sciences in Health Care and Medicine Janet B. Garner, Thelma C. Christiansen, 2008 Health care and medicine are dependent upon a close interaction with social sciences and professions in order to effectively treat patients Although medicines have becoming more and more targeted in recent times it is the recovery of the patient which is the true test of the system whether it be in a hospital setting or within a daily societal setting Such interactions may be psychological or interactions with social organisations essential to phase the patient back into society This book presents new issues experiences and research in the field from around the globe The Elderly in 2005: Health and Care Stuurgroep Toekomstscenario's Gezondheidszorg STG., 1994 Directory of Population Ageing Research in Europe National Institute on Ageing, 1998 The Elderly in 2005: Health and Care Steering Committee on Future Health Scenarios, 1994-04-30 The first STG report to embody scenarios on population aging health and care appeared in 1985 This report describes developments since 1985 reviewing the current position and setting out updated scenarios The 1985 report set out three scenarios in which the central focus was on the developing future pattern of demand for care by the elderly The present report too sets out three scenarios centring on the demand for care in which account is taken of a variety of factors it also details four strategic scenarios whose central focus is on the developing supply of care and which set supply and demand one against the other Three of the strategic scenarios emphasizing respectively intramural extramural and informal care suppose the demand for care to be met in full the fourth scenario which rolls current policies on the care of the elderly forward into the future pinpoints discrepancies between the need for care and the extent to which that need is likely to be met making clear in so doing that a review of long term policy for the elderly is urgently needed Health Futures Martha J. Garrett, 1999 FUTURES VOLUME 27 BUTTERWORTH-HEINEMANN, 1995 Social Service Abstracts , 1995 Subject Guide to Books in Print , 1991 A World Growing Old Daniel Callahan, 1996-08-01 For much of the developed world health care for a surging elderly population looms as one of the most daunting problems of the coming decade In this book contributors from diverse disciplinary backgrounds and countries discuss resource allocation for the elderly and debate plans for the years ahead Essays focus on five general issues the meaning of old age the goals of medicine and health care for the elderly the balance between the needs of the young and old the pressures of other social priorities and the role of families especially the burden on women in long term care In consideration of the difficult moral and practical issues involved the editors conclude the volume with a special report containing policy recommendations from representatives of eight countries the United States Belgium the Czech Republic Germany Hungary the Netherlands Sweden and the United Kingdom This important volume will be of interest to policymakers and a broad spectrum of health care professionals as well as to anyone interested in the fate of the elderly or in coming health care challenges Ageing, Care Need and Quality of Life Gabriele Doblhammer, Rembrandt Scholz, 2010-05-28 Steadily increasing life expectancy is one of the great achievements of industrialised societies over the last century Life expectancy has not only been growing among the young and those reaching retirement age but also especially in recent decades among people ages 80 and above These improvements in life expectancy have led to the emergence of the so called third age when people retire but are still you ful healthy and able to participate in society Nevertheless closer to the end of life a fourth age of decrepitude and dependence on others has to be anticipated spite the postponement of functional limitations and severe disabilities into higher ages the debate continues over whether the additional years gained are healthy years or years with severe care need particularly among the oldest old the fastest growing segment of the population Future improvements in life expectancy and the health status of the elderly will determine the need for care in the future While different assumptions about these trends based on expert opinion or the extrapolation of past experiences can be made there will always be a degree of uncertainty about future trends A third portant factor driving the extent of future care need is however already determined by the history of the past century and is embedded in the age structures of our populations

First multi year cumulation covers six years 1965 70      The Transitions of Aging Suchit Arora,2015-04-16 This book explores the unresolved paradox at the heart of population aging namely how to account for the fact that death rates from most non communicable diseases rise as people age yet aggregate death rates from such diseases have decreased overall despite an increasingly aging population It provides a long term historical perspective on this issue presenting evidence that the underpinnings of modern aging extend as far back as the nineteenth century and that aging has boosted per capita healthcare spending The book first outlines the three eras of the Epidemiologic Transition taking readers from its first stage where the threat of infectious diseases loom large through the transitional stage and on to the modern era where non communicable diseases are the primary cause of death Next the book examines the age profiles of people whose childhoods coincide with the different stages of the Epidemiologic Transition Using data from England and Wales one of the few places that have recorded the data necessary for such an exploration the book resolves the aging paradox by studying hidden generational change It traverses historical time and identifies the distinct socio economic and epidemiologic childhood conditions that may appear in it It then compares for instance aging of children brought up in an earlier epidemiologic stage with aging of ones raised in a modern one In the process it explores the influence of childhood development on aging Overall the book has a quantitative bent engaging the reader with analytical issues that will help develop a deeper understanding of modern aging

The Future of Medicines in Health Care Steering Committee on Future Health Scenarios,1995-07-31 The future place of medicines in health care is both exciting and uncertain With an aging population an increasing number of chronic sick a growing range of treatment options and a developing European market the one certainty is that medication patterns will change radically over the next 15 years or so How the future might look in terms of quality volume and cost of pharmacotherapy is the subject of this report Four scenarios for the future are set out all of which take account of already visible trends Sobriety in sufficiency envisages rational and restrained consumption patterns Risk of avoidance is dominated by fears of iatrogenic harm and hence minimal drug use The central feature of Technology on demand in contrast is confidence in technological progress Free market unfettered finally is marked by a Europe without frontiers and minimal state intervention The reader is encouraged to reflect without preconceptions on the future of medicines in health care No ready made answers are offered rather a wealth of information and analysis is provided which serves to underpin decision making and policy development not just by central government but also by every institution concerned with the role of medicines in health care

Mui,2014-06-11 Productive Ageing is the involvement of older adults in society through employment volunteering caregiving education and skill building In 2020 there will be 248 million people in China aged 60 and over At the same time the birth rate continues to drop and family structures are being transformed In the face of such pressing demographic challenges the productive engagement of older adults is a clear cut strategy to strengthen families and communities while simultaneously promoting the health of older adults From a human capital perspective an ageing population represents resources to address societal needs and the active engagement of older adults can enhance and maintain the physical mental and cognitive health of the older adults The challenge is to develop policies that support productive engagement and implement evidence based programs that create opportunities for older adults in active engagement in the community Contributions of older adults will be necessary for social and economic development of families communities and society Productive Engagement in Later Life covers the 2009 China conference on productive aging and discusses how to initiate and build productive aging agenda in China and around the globe This book was originally published as a special issue of China Journal of Social Work
