The Evolution of the Trade Regime John H. Barton, 2008      Doing Qualitative Research in Politics Angela Kachuyevski, Lisa M. Samuel, 2018-03-05 This volume offers unique perspectives on how to engage in methods of inquiry in Political Science Applying the debate in the field over the validity of qualitative methods the authors illustrate how various methodological approaches are both rigorous and empirically rich Each of the chapters consists of a particular methodological approach that offers useful insight into pressing political problems important for policy and for theory building Drawing upon both positivist and interpretive approaches the chapters illustrate how to engage in qualitative research involving case studies content analysis and ethnography each outlining the doing part of research The volume is theoretically thematically and geographically diverse important for students and scholars across the field      The United States and International Law Lucrecia García Iommi, Richard W Maass, 2022-07-26 Why U S support for international law is so inconsistent      Firm Interests Cornelia Woll, 2018-07-05 Firms are central to trade policy making Some analysts even suggest that they dictate policy on the basis of their material interests Cornelia Woll counters these assumptions arguing that firms do not always know what they want To be sure firms lobby hard to attain a desired policy once they have defined their goals Yet material factors are insufficient to account for these preferences The ways in which firms are embedded in political settings are much more decisive Woll demonstrates her case by analyzing the surprising evolution of support from large firms for liberalization in telecommunications and international air transport in the United States and Europe Within less than a decade former monopolies with important home markets abandoned their earlier calls for subsidies and protectionism and joined competitive multinationals in the demand for global markets By comparing the complex evolution of firm preferences across sectors and countries Woll shows that firms may influence policy outcomes but policies and politics in turn influence business demands This is particularly true in the European Union where the constraints of multilevel decision making encourage firms to pay lip service to liberalization if they want to maintain good working relations with supranational officials In the United States firms adjust their sectoral demands to fit the government's agenda In both contexts the interaction between government and firm representatives affects not only the strategy but also the content of business lobbying on global trade      Greening through Trade Sikina Jinnah, Jean-Frederic Morin, 2020-03-03 How the environmental provisions in US preferential trade agreements affect both the environmental policies of trading partners and the effectiveness of multilateral environmental agreements As trade negotiations within the World Trade Organization seem permanently stalled countries turn increasingly to preferential trade agreements PTAs between smaller groups of nations Many of these PTAs incorporate environmental provisions some of which require trading partners to enact new domestic environmental laws and use the enforcement mechanisms available within trade agreements as tools for environmental protection In Greening through Trade Sikina Jinnah and Jean Fr d ric Morin provide the first detailed examination of how the environmental provisions in US preferential trade agreements affect both the environmental policies of trading partners and the effectiveness of multilateral environmental agreements. They do so through a combination of in depth qualitative case studies and quantitative analysis of an original dataset of 688 global PTAs. Jinnah and Morin explore the effects of linkages between PTAs and environmental treaties and the diffusion of environmental norms and policy through PTAs. Centrally they argue that US trade agreements can serve as mechanisms both to export environmental policies to trading partner nations and third party countries and to enhance the effectiveness of multilateral environmental agreements by strengthening their enforcement capacity. They caution that PTAs are not a panacea for environmental governance; deeper problems of unsustainable consumption and differential power dynamics between trading partners must be carefully navigated in deploying trade agreements for environmental protection.

Redesigning the World Trade Organization for the Twenty-first Century Debra P. Steger, 2010-05-06. Two high level commissions, the Sutherland report in 2004 and the Warwick Commission report in 2007 addressed the future of the World Trade Organization and made proposals for incremental reform. This book goes further; it explains why institutional reform of the WTO is needed at this critical juncture in world history and provides innovative practical proposals for modernizing the WTO to enable it to respond to the challenges of the twenty first century. Contributors focus on five critical areas: transparency, decision and rule making procedures, internal management structures, participation by non governmental organizations and civil society and relationships with regional trade agreements. Co published with the International Development Research Centre and the Centre for International Governance Innovation.

Markets: Monitoring And Disciplining The International Trade Impacts Of Agricultural Policies Timothy

Josling, 2015-03-11 The aim of the book is to provide interested readers with access to a number of articles that have been written over the years on the subject of the linkages between domestic farm policies particularly in developed countries and world markets for agricultural goods The scope of the book includes the measurement of protection and the estimation of transfers to agricultural producers the effect of these policies on consumers and the consequent impact on international trade A major theme is that the monitoring of the trade and transfer implications of farm policies is an essential first step to addressing the need for internationally agreed disciplines on their nature and extent The topic of trade impacts of farm policies has become important in two different market situations When agricultural commodity prices are depressed attention turns to the activities of countries particularly developed countries that support the income of their own farmers but at the expense of farmers in other countries When prices rise as they have done in the last five years the question is reversed what is the impact of the farm and food policies that restrict exports to keep domestic prices low on food security in other countries Thus the narrative of the monitoring of farm policies by international organizations such as the OECD and the disciplining of such policies under the rules of the WTO is as relevant today as in the 1970s when the first efforts in this direction were made Crisis of Multilateralism? Challenges and Resilience Auriane Guilbaud, Franck

Petiteville, Frédéric Ramel, 2023-10-18 This book explores the challenges that multilateralism faces today and questions the idea of a crisis of multilateral cooperation and international organizations It accounts for the pressures on and power shifts in multilateralism in recent years such as the war in Syria the Covid 19 pandemic challenges for NATO the erosion of multilateral norms the transition from Trump to Biden the rise of China the post Brexit European Union and the mobilization of countries from the South The authors illustrate the resilience of multilateralism and lessons learned from the WTO UN Women International Organizations Secretariats and global environmental governance Written in part by members of the Research Group on Multilateral Action GRAM this volume argues that crisis should not be considered a pathology but the matrix of multilateralism which is more resilient than commonly thought This book will be of interest to students and scholars of International Relations global governance and international organizations The Circular Economy and

Institutional Change Yilmaz Kaplan, 2025-11-05 The climate crisis has emerged as a consequence of the linear economic system that developed in the aftermath of the Industrial Revolution In recent years global actors have recognised the need for institutional change from the linear economy to a more sustainable alternative The circular economy This book analyses the potential for transformative institutional change to a circular economy both in theory and in practice At the theoretical level the book evaluates the feasibility of transitioning from a linear economy system to a circular economy by drawing on the principles of New Institutionalism. It thoroughly examines the key parameters of institutional change focusing on the role of actors and new ideas within the institutional change process. Building upon this theoretical framework, the book then delves into the practical implementations of key actors. It first explores the role of the state and the market as crucial institutional actors, referencing the historical debate between these two entities. Additionally, the book critically assesses the agenda setting power of influential international organisations, specifically the United Nations and the World Trade Organization, in driving a circular institutional change. Furthermore, it analyses the circular economy policies of influential global actors such as the European Union, China, Japan, and the USA. Aligned with these analyses, the book also examines the potential of a circular institutional change to bring about a paradigm shift from the prevailing industrial and consumer-centric society to an ecologically oriented society. This book is invaluable for readers interested in the circular economy, new institutionalism, the impacts of climate change, and alternative economic policy.

Introduction to International Political Economy David N. Balaam, Bradford Dillman, 2015-07-17. A complete and accessible overview of how politics and economics collide in a global context. This text surveys the theories, institutions, and relationships that characterize IPE and highlights them in a diverse range of regional and transnational issues. The bestseller in the field, Introduction to International Political Economy positions students to critically evaluate the global economy and to appreciate the personal impact of political, economic, and social forces.

Self-Enforcing Trade Chad P. Bown, 2010-02-01. The World Trade Organization backbone of today's international commercial relations requires member countries to self-enforce exporters' access to foreign markets. Its dispute settlement system is the crown jewel of the international trading system, but its benefits still fall disproportionately to wealthy nations. Could the system be doing more on behalf of developing countries? In Self-Enforcing Trade, Chad P. Bown explains why the answer is an emphatic yes. Bown argues that as poor countries look to the benefits promised by globalization as part of their overall development strategy, they increasingly require access to the WTO dispute settlement process to protect their trading interests. Unfortunately, the practical realities of WTO dispute settlement as it currently stands create a number of hurdles that prevent developing countries from enjoying the trading system's full benefits. This book confronts these challenges. Self-Enforcing Trade examines the WTO's extended litigation process, highlighting the tangle of international economics law and politics that participants must master. He identifies the costs that prevent developing countries from disentangling the self-enforcement process and fully using the WTO system as part of their growth strategies. Bown assesses recent efforts to help developing countries overcome those costs, including the role of the Advisory Centre on WTO Law and development-focused NGOs. Bown's proposed Institute for Assessing WTO Commitments tackles the largest remaining obstacle currently limiting developing country engagement in the WTO's self-enforcement process: a problematic lack of information monitoring and surveillance.

Informal Governance in World Politics Kenneth W. Abbott, Thomas J. Biersteker, 2024-05-30. Characterizes the three distinct types of informal governance and provides a normative assessment of them      Trade Cooperation Andreas Dür, Manfred Elsig, 2015-01-08 Preferential trade agreements PTAs have been proliferating for more than two decades with the negotiations for a Transatlantic Trade and Investment Partnership and a Trans Pacific Partnership being just the tip of the iceberg This volume addresses some of the most pressing issues related to the surge of these agreements It includes chapters written by leading political scientists economists and lawyers which theoretically and empirically advance our understanding of trade agreements The key theme is that PTAs vary widely in terms of design The authors provide explanations as to why we see these differences in design and whether and how these differences matter in practice The tools for understanding the purposes and effects of PTAs that are offered will guide future research and inform practitioners and trade policy experts about progress in the scientific enquiry into PTAs      The Political Economy of Brazil's WTO Case Against the United States Mark S. Langevin, 2023-06-24 This book is about the remarkable trade conflict between two agricultural superpowers with a focus on Brazil's rapid agricultural modernization in recent decades and its impact on trade policy formation and global economic governance Previous research including Black 2016 trace the origins and evolution of the cotton dispute up to the August 31 2009 final arbitration ruling that authorized Brazil to impose retaliatory trade measures to compel U S compliance Inside the Cotton Dispute offers a comprehensive examination of the bilateral relations and negotiations that culminated with the October 2014 mutual solution to one of the most important trade conflicts since the establishment of the World Trade Organization
