Military Weapons and Environment Wing Commander (Dr) Umesh Chandra Jha, 2017-10-15 Armed conflicts have become more complicated with the emphasis shifting towards new weapons such as drones cybercrime and autonomous weapons In July 2017 the UN General Assembly adopted the Treaty on the Prohibition of Nuclear Weapons This treaty prohibits a full range of nuclear weapon related activities such as undertaking to develop test produce manufacture acquire possess or stockpile nuclear weapons or other nuclear explosive devices as well as the use or threat of use of these weapons The ongoing conflicts have shown that the consequences of the use of explosive weapons are not limited to death physical injury and disability but also include long term impacts on mental well being The use of improvised weapons by States and non State actors is an area of concern for the environment Every State must therefore ensure that weapons used by their armed forces are explicitly adjudged under International Humanitarian Law IHL and Human Rights Law While reviewing a new weapon the States must adopt multilateral approaches drawing upon relevant legal health environmental and military expertise This book describes the environmental effects of eight weapons and explosive remnants of war that have caused extensive environmental harm in the recent past It also makes specific recommendations addressed to the international community and the States for protecting the natural environment from the impact of weapons of war This book will contribute towards a better understanding of the environmental harm caused by military weapons Environmental Law of Armed Conflict Nada Al-Duaij, 2021-10-25 This timely study examines how the environmental impact of modern warfare violates fundamental principles of international environmental and humanitarian laws and why these consideration need to be included in rules of armed conflict If direct attacks on innocent civilians are universally recognized as unacceptable then environ mental devastation of their habitat by acts of war must also be recognized as an unacceptable consequence of armed conflict The author presents the case that the international community understand its responsibility to curb environ mental consequences of modern weaponry and incorporate environmental concerns into the conventions regulating armed conflict Published under the Transnational Publishers imprint Armed Conflict and Environmental Damage Dr. U C Jha, 2014-08-01 Armed conflict and military activities have serious adverse impacts on the environment Modern weaponry troop movements landmines hazardous military waste and the destruction of forests for military use are a few sources of harm to the environment both during armed conflict and peacetime military activities Ecological assaults in combat areas are often kept a secret by the government resulting in even greater humanitarian and environmental harm Environmental degradation is increasingly being recognized as one of the most significant challenges of the 21st century and its effects are being felt worldwide Both domestic and international legislations have been inadequate in mitigating the impact of military activities This book provides details of the environmental destruction wreaked during international and non international armed conflicts and argues that the existing legal regime for the protection of the environment during armed conflict requires substantial modification It puts forward the view that though it is inconceivable to impose an absolute ban on environmental damage during military operations strengthening and clarifying the existing laws protecting the environment in times of conflict and enforcing environment friendly practices among military forces could go a long way in protecting natural assets of our earth
