Mediatizing the Nation, Ordering the World Andrew Dougall, 2024-08-19 This book offers a timely and engaging account of how technologies of communication media impact nationalist challenges to global order shedding new light on how they matter how they have changed and how their evolution transforms the conditions of possibility for nationalist order challengers In the 21st century we have become accustomed to close entanglements between resurgent nationalism and digital media In Mediatizing the Nation Ordering the World Andrew Dougall shows that the relationship between media and nationalist order contestation is far older Comparing Trump's breakthrough in the 21st century United States with a similar but unsuccessful movement in 19th century Britain the book argues that communication media shaped these episodes by differently patterning the constitution and distribution of meaning on which they relied Underpinning this argument is a novel theorization of media in world politics that draws on insights from media and communications scholarship in addition to international relations Among the book's key contributions are to explain how media affect vertical challenges to the structure of international orders to reframe IR's theoretical engagement with the relationship between media and order and to situate the internet within a longer history of this relationship contributing to a more balanced view of its impact

Edwardian and Georgian Fiction Sterling Professor of Humanities Harold Bloom, 2009 This volume examines the great writers of the late 19th and early 20th centuries from Thomas Hardy to Joseph

Conrad Victorian and Edwardian Responses to the Italian Renaissance John E. Law, Lene Østermark-Johansen, 2017-03-02

The historiography of the Italian Renaissance has been much studied but generally in the context of a few key figures. Much less appreciated is the extent of the enthusiasm for the subject in the 19th and early 20th centuries when the subject was discovered by travellers and men and women of letters, historians, artists, architects and photographers and by collectors on both sides of the Atlantic. The essays in Victorian and Edwardian Responses to the Italian Renaissance explore the breadth of the responses stimulated by the encounter between the British, the Americans and the Italians of the Renaissance. The volume approaches the subject from an interdisciplinary perspective. While recognising the abiding importance of the familiar great names, it seeks to draw attention to a wider cast of people, many of whom led colourful, energetic lives, knew Italy well and wrote eloquently about the country and its Renaissance. Several essays show that Renaissance studies became a field in which female historians could explore areas of relevance to the New Woman. Other chapters examine the aims and politics of collecting and the place of the collector in literature and in the rediscovery of Renaissance artists. The contribution of teachers and other less formal champions of the Italian Renaissance is explored, as is the role of photographers who re-framed and re-viewed Florence, the Renaissance city, for Victorian and later eyes. Reinventing Africa Annie E.

Coombes, 1994-01-01 Between 1890 and 1918 British colonial expansion in Africa led to the removal of many African artifacts that were subsequently brought to Britain and displayed. Annie Coombes argues that this activity had profound repercussions for the construction of a national identity within Britain itself, the effects of which are still with us today. Through a series of detailed case studies, Coombes analyzes the popular and scientific knowledge of Africa which shaped a diverse public's perception of that continent: the looting and display of the Benin bronzes from Nigeria; ethnographic museums; the mass spectacle of large-scale international and missionary exhibitions and colonial exhibitions such as the Stanley and African of 1890; together with the critical reaction to such events in British national newspapers, the radical and humanitarian press and the West African press. Coombes argues that although endlessly reiterated racial stereotypes were disseminated through popular images of all things African, this was no simple reproduction of imperial ideology. There were a number of different and sometimes conflicting representations of Africa and of what it was to be African, representations that varied according to political, institutional and disciplinary pressures. The professionalization of anthropology over this period played a crucial role in the popularization of contradictory ideas about African culture to a mass public. Pioneering in its research, this book offers valuable insights for art and design historians, historians of imperialism and anthropology, anthropologists and museologists.
