the lives of these men and women but it cannot keep them independent free of pain or competent to manage their own affairs. Never before have so many been so sick for so long. Changes in the size and structure of the American family make long term home care almost impossible while exorbitant health costs and scarce resources limit the provision of high quality care by paid workers. Researcher Barbara J. Logue refers to any deliberate behavior that causes death as death control. She points out that death control like birth control involves very serious and deeply personal decisions, choices that ought to be made on the basis of reliable information with care and compassion without coercion. She goes on to assert that like birth control, death control should be performed legally and with the help of the medical community. Without access to assisted deaths, many frail old people are left to endure wretched deaths. Some die slowly of neglect or malnutrition in nursing homes. Others take their own lives, sometimes by violent means, while they can still act independently because they are afraid that no one will help them if they wait until they are very sick. Some die alone, fearful of implicating friends or relatives in their back alley euthanasia. While some die too soon because they are poor, uneducated, or hard to manage, others are overtreated and their deaths delayed because doctors and hospitals want to increase their income or fear prosecution if they help a patient die. Barbara Logue describes these and many other hazards inherent in our present long term care system, noting that all too often the system causes suffering instead of alleviating it. After assessing the alternatives, she urges that we must make compassionate death control as available as birth control. We must regulate and monitor it like any other medical procedure, taking steps to minimize the risks while maximizing the benefits. Handbook on Ethical Issues in Aging Tanya F.

Johnson, 1999-06-30 Johnson addresses ethical issues in aging in a variety of contexts: the social, cultural, environment, physical, health, care, mental health, care, social health, care, legal, care, and spiritual, care. Because long term aging has created a new generation of older adults, some new issues are emerging which need to be addressed from an ethical perspective: elder abuse, physician assisted suicide, dementia, intergenerational equity, guardianship, and living wills. A wide range of experts including physicians, philosophers, lawyers, social workers, nurses, sociologists, public health, persons, theologians, historians, and ethicists share their insights on the ethical issues and dilemmas older adults in American society are facing or are likely to face over the life course. Of interest to undergraduate and graduate faculty and students in sociology, social work, and social services practitioners, policymakers, and academic and professional libraries. The Praeger Handbook of Victimology Janet K.
