"Life in the United Kingdom"

Advisory Group, Great Britain: Home Office, 2004-12-15 This compendium of information aims primarily to assist teachers of English as a second language mentors and others helping immigrants to integrate Why Children Follow Rules Tom R. Tyler, Rick Trinkner, 2017 Legal socialization is the process by which children and adolescents acquire their law related values attitudes and reasoning capacities Such values and attitudes in particular legitimacy underlie the ability and willingness to consent to laws and defer to legal authorities that make legitimacy based legal systems possible By age eighteen a person's orientation toward law is largely established yet legal scholarship has largely ignored this process in favor of studying adults and their relationship to the law Why Children Follow Rules focuses upon legal socialization outlining what is known about the process across three related but distinct contexts the family the school and the juvenile justice system Throughout Tom Tyler and Rick Trinkner emphasize the degree to which individuals develop their orientations toward law and legal authority upon values connected to responsibility and obligation as opposed to fear of punishment They argue that authorities can act in ways that internalize legal values and promote supportive attitudes In particular consensual legal authority is linked to three issues how authorities make decisions how they treat people and whether they recognize the boundaries of their authority When individuals experience authority that is fair respectful and aware of the limits of power they are more likely to consent and follow directives Despite clear evidence showing the benefits of consensual authority strong pressures and popular support for the exercise of authority based on dominance and force persist in America's families schools and within the juvenile justice system As the currently low levels of public trust and confidence in the police the courts and the law undermine the effectiveness of our legal system Tom Tyler and Rick Trinkner point to alternative way to foster the popular legitimacy of the law in an era of mistrust Finding the Way Home Nora Räthzel, 2007-12-12 These two parallel studies in Hamburg and London aim to provide an insight into the different ways in which young people with and without a migrant background live their everyday lives together The book demonstrates how friendships tensions and sometimes adversities are negotiated It shows how young people construct landscapes of risk and safety and how relations of ethnicity class and gender are lived differently in different socio spatial contexts In some situations young people develop enjoyable ways of living with differences in others they live with tensions and conflicts These may be experienced through notions of ethnicity but sometimes through feelings of belonging to places and or specific youth cultures which transcend ethnic differences more often than class differences Children, Young People and the Press in a Transitioning Society Faith Gordon, 2018-03-10 This book assesses the implications of how children and young people are represented in print media in Northern Ireland a post conflict transitioning society Gordon analyses how children and young people's perceived involvement in anti social and criminal behaviour is constructed and amplified in media as well as in popular and political discourses Drawing on deviancy amplification folk devils and moral panics this original study specifically addresses the labelling perspective and confirms that young people are convenient scapegoats where their negative reputation diverts attention from the structural and institutional issues that are inevitable in a post conflict society. Alongside content analysis from six months of print media and a case study on the representation of youth involvement in sectarian rioting this book also analyses interviews with editors, journalists, politicians, policy makers and a spokesperson for the Police Service of Northern Ireland. Noting the importance of prioritising the experiences of children, young people and their advocates, this timely and engaging research will be of specific interest to scholars and students of criminal justice, criminology, socio legal studies, sociology, social policy, media studies, politics and law as well as media professionals and policy makers.
