Garthwaite,2009-11-30 The Bakhtiyari are one of the most important nomadic societies in the Middle East but although this tribe has many powerful romantic associations it has also been the subject of much misunderstanding even today This penetrating examination of the Bakhtiyari in Iran explores their powerful political and economic role in Iranian society in the nineteenth and twentieth centuries and provides a key to understanding how political power is created maintained and lost in a tribal society Based on an extraordinary archive of documents now lost as a result of the upheavals of the Iranian Revolution Khans and Shahs offers a complete picture of the tribe placing it in the context of its full history from the 14th century to the present day Among much else Gene Garthwaite examines the role of the Bakhtiyari in the exploration and development of Iranian oil which was first discovered on their tribal lands by the British entrepreneur William Knox D Arcy This ground breaking study explores the Bakhtiyari s interaction with the State and the effects of the wider world on their social and political structure and offers unique insights into a complex but important aspect of Iran s history Nomadism in Iran Daniel T. Potts,2014 Potts examines the development of nomadism in Iran over the course of three millennia Evidence of nomadism in prehistory is examined and found insufficient to justify claims of its great antiquity The background of the earliest nomadic groups identified as Persian tribes by Herodotus is examined within the context of the migration of Iranian speakers onto the Iranian plateau in the late second or early first millennium B C Thereafter evidence of nomadic groups in Late Antiquity and early Islamic times is reviewed Bones and Identity Nimrod Marom,Reuven Yeshuran,Lior Weissbrod,Guy Bar-Oz,2016-07-31 Seventeen papers demonstrate how zooarchaeologists engage with questions of identity through culinary references livestock husbandry practices and land use Contributions combine hitherto unpublished zooarchaeological data from regions straddling a wide geographic expanse between Greece in the West and India in the East and spanning a time range from the latest part of the Palaeolithic to the Middle Ages The vitality of a hands on approach to data presentation and interpretation carried out primarily at the level of the individual site the arena of research providing the bread and butter of zooarchaeological work conducted in southwest Asia is demonstrated Among the themes explored are shifting identities of late hunter gatherers through interactions with settled agrarian societies the management of camp sites by early complex hunter gatherers processes of assimilation of Roman culinary practices among Egyptian elites and the propagation of medieval pilgrim identity through the use of seashell insignia A wealth of new data is discussed and a wide variety of applications of analytical approaches are applied to particular case studies within the framework of social and contextual zooarchaeology The volume constitutes the proceedings of the 11th meeting of the ICAZ Working Group Archaeozoology of Southwestern Asia and Adjacent Areas ASWA The Emergence of Pottery in West Asia Akiri Tsuneki,Olivier Nieuwenhuyse,Stuart Campbell,2017-03-31 Over the past fifty years or so early pottery complexes in the wider region of West Asia have hardly ever been investigated in their own right Early ceramics have often been unexpected by products of projects focussing upon much earlier aceramic or later prehistoric periods In recent years however there has been a tremendous increase in research in various parts of West Asia focusing explicitly on this theme It had generally become accepted that the adoption of pottery in West Asia happened relatively late in the history of ceramics Several regions are now believed to have developed pottery significantly earlier Thus pottery occurs in Eastern Russia in China and Japan by 16 500 cal BC and in north Africa it is known in the 10th millennium However while the East Asian examples in particular do mark chronologically earlier instances the picture in West Asia is actually rather more complex in part because of the tyranny of the Aceramic Ceramic Neolithic chronology For the first time The Emergence of Pottery in West Asia examines in detail the when where how and why pottery first arrived in the region A key insight that emerges is that we must not confuse the reasons for pottery adoption with the long term consequences Neolithic peoples in West Asia did not adopt pottery because of the many uses and functions it would gain many centuries later and the development of ceramic technology needs to be examined in the context of its original cultural and social milieu The Making of Early Kashmir Muhammad Ashraf Wani, Aman Ashraf Wani, 2023-02-22 This is the first full length history of early Kashmir locating it beyond its regional context from pre history to the thirteenth century Drawing on a variety of sources including conventional archaeological and literary sources as well as non conventional sources like philology toponym and surnames it presents a connected history of early Kashmir over the longue duree It challenges tendencies towards nationalist historiographies of the region by situating it in the context of the shared histories of humanity The volume will be of great interest to scholars and researchers of history archaeology anthropology and South Asian studies The Domestication and Exploitation of Plants and Animals G. W. Dimbleby, 2017-07-12 The domestication of plants and animals was one of the greatest steps forward taken by mankind Although it was first achieved long ago we still need to know what led to it and how and even when it took place Only when we have this understanding will we be able to appreciate fully the important social and economic consequences of this step Even more important an understanding of this achievement is basic to any insight into modern man s relationship to his habitat In the last decade or two a change in methods of investigating these events has taken place due to the mutual realization by archaeologists and natural scientists that each held part of the key and neither alone had the whole Inevitably perhaps the floodgate that was opened has resulted in a spate of new knowledge which is scattered in the form of specialist reports in diverse journals This volume results from presentations at the Institute of Archaeology London University discussing the domestication and exploitation of plants and animals Workers in the archaeological anthropological and biological fields attempted to bridge the gap between their respective disciplines through personal contact and discussion Modern techniques and the result of their application to the classical problems of domestication selection and spread of cereals and of cattle were discussed but so were comparable problems in plants and animals not previously considered in this context Although there were differing opinions on taxonomic classification the editors have standardized and simplified the usage throughout this book In particular they have omitted references to authorities and adopted the binomial classification for both botanical and zoological names They followed this procedure in all cases except where sub specific differences are discussed and also standardized orthography of sites Archaeological Thought in America C. C. Lamberg-Karlovsky, 1989 American archaeology today encompasses a huge range of approaches and draws eclectically on a multitude of academic disciplines Until now however there has been no book seeking to separate the main strands and traditions of research and present a rounded picture of American archaeological thought in all its diversity. The seventeen essays in Archaeological Thought in America describe recent theoretical advances and present substantive interpretations of prehistoric data drawn from a variety of cultures and time frames including Mesoamerica, Central Asia, India, and China. The contributors include many of the leading North American archaeologists of this generation.
