Self-Feeling Gerhard Kreuch, 2019-11-11 This monograph offers new insights into the connection between self consciousness and emotion It focuses on what fundamental feelings of being tell us about ourselves The results enrich the philosophy of human affectivity and help shed new light on some pressing current problems The author seeks to understand self consciousness as an affective phenomenon namely as self feeling He identifies it as a pre reflective pre propositional bodily feeling that shapes our space of possibilities It is the affective disclosure of individual existence His account overcomes the difficulties of infinite regress and vicious circularity that reflective or higher order accounts of self consciousness struggle with At the same time it helps build a bridge between the basic level of self consciousness and the higher level of more substantial thoughts about oneself The title explores fundamental affectivity

Matthew Ratcliffe s theory of existential feelings features of self feeling and appropriateness and inappropriateness in self interpretation It also considers the contributions of the Heidelberg School of self consciousness to current debates The title provides students and researchers with a unique look into such vital philosophical questions as What is self consciousness How do we know ourselves It will also appeal to a wider audience interested in self consciousness and or human affectivity since it does not presuppose knowledge of the jargon

she argues for a theory of rhetoric that understands and values touch as rhetorical Essential to her argument is a redefinition of key concepts and terms the rhetorical situation rhetorical identification and the appeals of ethos character pathos emotion and logos logic or message By connecting Empedoclean and sophistic theories to Aristotelian rhetoric and Burkean approaches Walters s methods mobilize a wide range of key figures in rhetorical history and theory in response to the context of disability Using Empedocles tactile approach to logos Walters shows how the iterative writing processes of people with psychological disabilities shape crucial spaces for identification based on touch in online and real life spaces Mobilizing the touch based properties of the rhetorical practice of m tis Walters demonstrates how rhetors with autism approach the crafting of ethos in generative and embodied ways Rereading the rhetorical practice of kairos in relation to the proximity between bodies Walters demonstrates how writers with physical disabilities move beyond approaches of pathos based on pity and inspiration The volume also includes a classroom based exploration of the discourses and assumptions regarding bodies in relation to haptic or touch based technologies Because the sense of touch is the most persistent of the senses Walters argues that in contexts of disability and in situations in which people with and without disabilities interact touch can be a particularly vital instrument for creating meaning connection and partial identification She contends that a rhetoric thus reshaped stretches contemporary rhetoric and composition studies to respond to the contributions of disabled rhetors and transforms the traditional rhetorical appeals and canons Ultimately Walters argues a rhetoric of touch allows for a richer understanding of the communication processes of a wide range of rhetors who use embodied strategies

The Feeling of Embodiment Glenn Carruthers,2019-06-07 This book proposes a novel and rigorous explanation of consciousness It argues that the study of an aspect of our self consciousness known as the feeling of embodiment teaches us that there are two distinct phenomena to be targeted by an explanation of consciousness First is an explanation of the phenomenal qualities what it is like of the experience and second is the subject s awareness of those qualities Glenn Carruthers explores the phenomenal qualities of the feeling of embodiment using the tools of quality spaces as well as the subject s awareness of those qualities as a functionally emergent property of various kinds of processing of these spaces Where much recent work on consciousness focuses on visual experience this book rather draws evidence from the study of self consciousness Carruthers argues that in light of recent methodological discoveries awareness must be explained in terms of the organization of multiple cognitive processes The book offers an explanation of anomalous body representations and from that poses a more general theory of consciousness Ultimately this book creates a hybrid account of consciousness that explains phenomenology and awareness using different tools It will be of great interest to all scholars of psychology and
