invention of tradition by which these manifestations occur. The text is divided into two sections. In the first empirical cases of spirituality characterized by syncretistic processes are highlighted in the second examples which can be traced back to forms of the reinvention of tradition are examined. The authors document possible forms of adaptations and religious enculturation. In the second the authors demonstrate that spiritual traditions whether ancient or historically fictitious are suitable for reframing in the context of critical interpretative frameworks related to cultural expectations which challenge them and call their continuity into question.

Textiles and Cult in the Ancient Mediterranean Cecilie Brøns, Marie-Louise Nosch, 2017-07-31. Twenty-four experts from the fields of Ancient History, Semitic philology, Assyriology, Classical Archaeology and Classical Philology come together in this volume to explore the role of textiles in ancient religion in Greece, Italy, the Levant and the Near East. Recent scholarship has illustrated how textiles played a large and very important role in the ancient Mediterranean sanctuaries. In Greece the so-called temple inventories testify to the use of textiles as votive offerings in particular to female divinities. Furthermore in several cults textiles were used to dress the images of different deities. Textiles played an important role in the dress of priests and priestesses who often wore specific garments designated by particular colours. Clothing regulations in order to enter or participate in certain rituals from several Greek sanctuaries also testify to the importance of dress of ordinary visitors. Textiles were used for the furnishings of the temples for example in the form of curtains, draperies, wall hangings, sun shields and carpets. This illustrates how the sanctuaries were potential major consumers of textiles; nevertheless this particular topic has so far not received much attention in modern scholarship. Furthermore our knowledge of where the textiles consumed in the sanctuaries came from, where they were produced and by who is extremely limited. Textiles and Cult in the Ancient Mediterranean examines the topics of textile production in sanctuaries, the use of textiles as votive offerings and ritual dress using epigraphy, literary sources, iconography and the archaeological material itself.

Embracing the Witch and the Goddess Kathryn Roundtree, Kathryn Roundtree, 2004. Embracing the Witch and the Goddess is a detailed survey of present-day feminist witches in New Zealand. It examines the attraction of witchcraft for its practitioners and explores witches' rituals, views and beliefs about how magic works. The book provides a detailed portrait of an undocumented section of the growing neo-pagan movement and compares the special character of New Zealand witchcraft with its counterparts in the United States, Great Britain and Australia. Kathryn Roundtree traces the emergence and history of feminist witchcraft and links witchcraft with the contemporary Goddess movement. She reviews scholarly approaches on the study of witchcraft and deals with the key debates which have engaged the movement's adherents and their critics and ultimately presents what Mary Daly declared was missing from most historical and anthropological research on witchcraft: a Hag-identified vision. Based on fieldwork amongst witch practitioners, Embracing the Witch and the Goddess is an important contribution to the emerging profile of present-day witchcraft and paganism.
