Serialization, Commercialization and the Children's Classics Amy Webster, 2024-12-12 An exploration of the serialization of children's classics by contemporary publishers this book digs into the impact of the practice and provides new ways of reading the corpus of British children's literature from the 20th century Amy Webster demonstrates how publishers select texts for their series which texts they omit which outliers are sometimes included and how a core group of works from the golden age of children's literature emerged The text also examines how texts are abridged and transformed from publisher to publisher through close readings of The Wind in the Willows and Alice's Adventures in Wonderland and how the repackaging of works within a series highlight issues and choices tied to key paratextual elements Analysing data through distant reading and close reading of series from Ladybird Longman Puffin and Walker Illustrated editions this book sheds light on how modern classics series are marked by variation and instability but also a reductive homogeneity Through her use of quantitative and text focused research Webster reveals how commercial motivations have created a gulf between the canonical concepts of the classic and how the term functions as a marketing tool in British children's publishing With notions of what counts as a classic compromised and complicated this book leads the call for a critical approach towards both the term classic and to reading children's classics that acknowledges how they are tied to the commercial enterprises of the children's book business

Do You Remember House? Micah E. Salkind, 2019 Today no matter where you are in the world you can turn on a radio and hear the echoes and influences of Chicago house music Do You Remember House tells a comprehensive story of the emergence and contemporary memorialization of house in Chicago tracing the development of Chicago house music culture from its beginnings in the late 70s to the present Based on expansive research in archives and his extensive conversations with the makers of house in Chicago's parks clubs museums and dance studios author Micah Salkind argues that the remediation and adaptation of house music by crossover communities in its first decade shaped the ways that Chicago producers DJs dancers and promoters today remember and mobilize the genre as an archive of collectivity and congregation The book's engagement with musical kinesthetic and visual aspects of house music culture builds from a tradition of queer of color critique As such Do You Remember House considers house music's liberatory potential in terms of its genre defiant repertoire in motion Ultimately the book argues that even as house music culture has been appropriated and exploited the music's porosity and flexibility have allowed it to remain what pioneering Chicago DJ Craig Cannon calls a musical Stonewall for queers and people of color in the Windy City and around the world
