Market Rules Douglas Brown, 2003 Federalism is about dividing and sharing government often in complex ways that involve some tasks being done jointly Are federal systems capable of effective joint policy making Is this possible in the fast moving context of globalization In Market Rules Douglas Brown examines these questions through a comparative study of Australia and Canada looking at recent major reforms to the economic union in the two federations and comparing them with the evolving European Union EU Brown argues that internal barriers to trade and competition in these countries were significant obstacles to competition in the global economy and shows that the old market rules were rooted in longstanding political and regional compromises. He describes the process of detailed and difficult intergovernmental collaboration required for the EU and now Canada and Australia to produce new market rules. The resulting reforms created new regimes that provide deeper and broader national economic integration in Canada and Australia than in the EU. The new rules entrench neo liberal values retaining some room for diversity and flexibility for equity goals. Built on a careful analysis of the differences and similarities in political economy, constitutional design, federal culture and history of intergovernmental relations in Canada and Australia, Market Rules provides fresh evidence that federal states can be strong and autonomous in the global society while underscoring the conditions for effective collaboration that make this sustainable. Rich in detail, broad in scope, Market Rules makes a significant contribution to knowledge about federalism and economic policy making in the era of globalization.
