America Andrew F. Smith, 2017-02-16 This three volume work examines all facets of the modern U S food system including the nation's most important food and agriculture laws the political forces that shape modern food policy and the food production trends that are directly impacting the lives of every American family Americans are constantly besieged by conflicting messages about food the environment and health and nutrition Are foods with genetically modified ingredients safe Should we choose locally grown food Is organic food better than conventional food Are concentrated animal feed operations destroying the environment Should food corporations target young children with their advertising and promotional campaigns This comprehensive three volume set addresses all of these questions and many more probing the problems created by the industrial food system examining conflicting opinions on these complex food controversies and highlighting the importance of food in our lives and the decisions we make each time we eat The coverage of each of the many controversial food issues in the set offers perspectives from different sides to encourage readers to examine various viewpoints and make up their own minds The first volume Food and the Environment addresses timely issues such as climate change food waste pesticides and sustainable foods Volume two entitled Food and Health and Nutrition addresses subjects like antibiotics food labeling and the effects of salt and sugar on our health The third volume Food and the Economy tackles topics such as food advertising and marketing food corporations genetically modified foods globalization and megagrocery chains Each volume contains several dozen primary documents that include firsthand accounts written by promoters and advertisers journalists politicians and government officials and supporters and critics of various views related to food and beverages representing speeches advertisements articles books portions of major laws and government documents to name a few These documents provide readers additional resources from which to form informed opinions on food issues Whales and Elephants in International Conservation Law and Politics Ed Couzens, 2013-11-07 Whales and elephants are iconic giants of the marine and terrestrial animal world Both are conspicuous representatives of wildlife conservation The issues of whaling and the ivory trade are closely linked both legally and politically in many ways some obvious and some surprising The treatment of both whales and elephants will be politically and legally contentious for years to come and is of great significance to conservation in general This book examines the current state of international environmental law and wildlife conservation through a comparative analysis of the treatment of whales and elephants In particular it describes the separate histories of international governance of both whales and elephants presenting the various treaties through which conservation has been implemented It is shown that international environmental law is influenced and shaped by important political actors many with opposing views on how best conservation and sustainable development principles are to be implemented Modern environmental treaties are changing as weaknesses and loopholes are exposed in older and possibly outdated treaties such as the Convention on International Trade in Endangered Species of Wild Fauna and Flora CITES and the International Convention for the Regulation of Whaling ICRW Such weaknesses can be seen in the efforts made by some states to circumvent or weaken CITES and the International Whaling Commission and to resume commercial whaling and further in the efforts of countries to resume trade in ivory The argument is made that the Convention on Biological Diversity could be used to begin reconciling opposed views and to focus conservation efforts The argument is made that effective conservation of species cannot be achieved through individual treaties but only through a synergistic approach involving multilateral environmental agreements ecosystems of legal instruments

Governability of Fisheries and Aquaculture: Theory and Applications Maarten Bavinck, Ratana Chuenpagdee, Svein Jentoft, Jan Kooiman, 2013-04-10 Following from Fish for Life Interactive Governance for Fisheries Kooiman et al 2005 which presents an interdisciplinary and intersectoral approach to the governance of capture and aquaculture fisheries this volume pursues what interactive governance theory and the governability perspective contribute to the resolution of key fisheries problems these include overfishing unemployment and poverty food insecurity and social injustice Since these problems are varied and can be felt among governments resource users and communities globally the diagnosis must be holistic and take account of principles institutions and operational conditions The authors argue that wicked problems and institutional limitations are inherent to each setting and must be included in the analysis The volume thereby offers a new lens and a systematic approach for analysing the nature of problems and challenges concerning the governance of fisheries explores where these problems are situated and how potential solutions may be found It now seems clear that the crisis in the world s fisheries is a much larger and more complex problem than many had imagined Yet examining it through the lens of governability may offer the best hope for alleviating it as well as alleviating similar crises in other social systems James R McGoodwin Professor Emeritus University of Colorado The Crises of Legitimacy in Global Governance Gonca Oguz Gok,Hakan

are in charge of nature rather than part of it. The Earth and I is the first book to put all preconceived notions aside and to ask na vely Who are we really What is our relationship to the earth How is it possible that we out of all the millions of species have come to destroy our common home The answers are surprising and have far reaching implications for those searching for solutions Part One tells what is happening to the earth s systems and how they are being destroyed It rewrites the two million year history of humanity s tenure on the earth as if we are part of nature and not separate from it and describes both the earth and the universe as living systems It paints a global coherent picture of the devastation to Earth s air water forests and creatures that is not found elsewhere It reviews assaults on these systems that are not treated adequately if at all elsewhere chemicals radiation plastics detergents biocides noise cars and guns Part Two Digging below the Surface asks why and enters territory not previously explored by environmentalists It describes the various ways to make a living on the earth hunting and gathering shifting agriculture nomadic herding settled agriculture and industrial technology as choices not eras choices coexisting with one another until today It rewrites economics It explores the relationship of warfare slavery religion and human sexuality to the environmental crisis And it is forced to conclude that these aspects of human culture are not only shaped but created by the technologies we use that the use of non human sources of energy interferes with human psychological development and that the unfulfilled urges within us explode in the violent technologies that are destroying our planet The solutions if it is not too late therefore lie in wise choice rather than wise use of our technologies
