Enduring The Revolution Ding Ling And The Politics Of Literature In Guomindang China:

Enduring the Revolution Charles J. Alber, 2001-12-30 An anarchist by temperament the beautiful and talented Ding Ling attempted to find her way in the world alone She had a few female friends and a few significant male others but she rebelled against her family Most importantly she rebelled against the Chinese Communist Party to which she desperately hoped to belong The first part of a comprehensive biography of the major 20th century Chinese author Ding Ling this work draws not only on her memoirs but on numerous secondary sources many of which have become available only in the last two decades Though born into a wealthy family Jiang Bingzi was raised by her mother after the untimely death of her father She went to school in the May 4 era when protest was in the air the radical ideas of Mao were already in print and her idol Lu Xun was making his literary mark In her late teens she renounced her engagement changed her name and fled to Shanghai where she embraced the anarchist movement The loss of her brother and lifelong friend Wang Jianhong and the loss of her significant other Hu Yepin all threw her into various states of depression not to mention her own abduction by the Guomindang Nevertheless Ding Ling wrote her way out of despair and into the public limelight Her first collection of short stories In the Darkness made her famous because of its profound grasp of feminine psychology and its daring treatment of human sexuality But when Ding Ling attempted to dispel the darkness in Yan'an she like everyone else was told by Mao in his famous Talks to focus on the light Ding Ling made all the necessary adjustments literary and political She survived the rectification campaign and mastered proletarian fiction Mao loved her novel The Sun Shines on the Sanggan so much that he ranked her third among contemporaries Soon she was traveling to Eastern Europe and to Moscow where she consulted with Soviet notables With the founding of the People's Republic it appeared her star was on the rise This study of Ding Ling and China's literary environment in the first half of the 20th century will be useful to scholars and students of contemporary Chinese history literature and women's studies

Transpacific Community Richard Jean So, 2016-05-31 In the turbulent years after World War I a transpacific community of American and Chinese writers and artists emerged to forge new ideas regarding aesthetics democracy internationalism and the political possibilities of art Breaking with preconceived notions of an exotic East the Americans found in China and in the works of Chinese intellectuals inspiration for leftist and civil rights movements Chinese writers and intellectuals looked to the American tradition of political democracy to inform an emerging Chinese liberalism

This interaction reflected an unprecedented integration of American and Chinese cultures and a remarkable synthesis of shared ideals and political goals. The transpacific community that came together during this time took advantage of new advances in technology and media such as the telegraph and radio to accelerate the exchange of ideas. It created a fast paced cross cultural dialogue that transformed the terms by which the United States and China or more broadly West and East knew each other. Transpacific Community follows the left wing journalist Agnes Smedley's campaign to free the author Ding Ling from prison. Pearl Buck's attempt to fuse Jeffersonian democracy with late Qing visions of equality in The Good Earth. Paul Robeson's collaboration with the musician Liu Liangmo which drew on Chinese and African American traditions and the writer Lin Yutang's attempt to create a typewriter for Chinese characters. Together these individuals produced political projects that synthesized American and Chinese visions of equality and democracy and imagined a new course for East West relations.

Voices in Revolution John A. Crespi, 2009-07-29 China's century of revolutionary change has been heard as much as seen and nowhere is this more evident than in an auditory history of the modern Chinese poem. From Lu Xun's seminal writings on literature to a recitation renaissance in urban centers today poetics meets politics in the sounding voice of poetry. Supported throughout by vivid narration and accessible analysis Voices in Revolution offers a literary history of modern China that makes the case for the importance of the auditory dimension of poetry in national revolutionary and postsocialist culture. Crespi brings the past to life by first examining the ideological changes to poetic voice during China's early twentieth century transition from empire to nation. He then traces the emergence of the spoken poem from the May Fourth period to the present including its mobilization during the Anti Japanese War its incorporation into the student protest repertoire during China's civil war its role as a conflicted voice of Mao era revolutionary passion and finally its current adaptation to the cultural life of China's party guided market economy. Voices in Revolution alters the way we read by moving poems off the page and into the real time and space of literary activity. To all readers it offers an accessible yet conceptually fresh and often dramatic narration of China's modern literary experience. Specialists will appreciate the book's inclusion of noncanonical texts as well as its innovative interdisciplinary approach.

Revolutionary Nativism Maggie Clinton, 2017-03-02 In Revolutionary Nativism Maggie Clinton traces the history and cultural politics of fascist organizations that operated under the umbrella of the Chinese Nationalist Party (GMD) during the 1920s and 1930s. Clinton argues that fascism was not imported to China from Europe or Japan rather it emerged from the charged social conditions that prevailed in the country's southern and coastal regions during the interwar period. These fascist groups were led by young militants who believed that reviving China's Confucian national spirit could foster the discipline and social cohesion necessary to defend China against imperialism and Communism and to develop formidable industrial and military capacities thereby securing national strength in a competitive international arena. Fascists within the GMD deployed modernist aesthetics in their literature and art while justifying their anti Communist violence with nativist discourse. Showing how the GMD's fascist factions popularized a virulently nationalist rhetoric that linked Confucianism with a specific path of industrial development Clinton sheds new light on the complex dynamics of Chinese nationalism and modernity

Chinese Literature James L. Claren, 2002 Chinese literature one of the world's oldest and richest and consisting originally of poetry and later of drama and fiction may be divided into three major historical periods that roughly correspond to those of Western literary history the classical period from the 6th century BC to the 2nd century AD the medieval period from the third century to the late 12th century and the modern period from the 13th century to the present This book presents an overview of Chinese literature as well as a comprehensive bibliography primarily of English language sources accessed by subject author and title indexes
