Shukla, 1997 Contributed articles presented at a workshop held at Ahmedabad on Dec 8 1995 dealing in the Indian context in particular and developing countries in general

Implications of World Energy Trends for International Development Trade and Finance United States. Congress. House. Committee on Banking, Finance, and Urban Affairs. Subcommittee on International Development, Finance, Trade, and Monetary Policy, 1991 Energy Efficiency in Developing Countries Suzana Tavares da Silva, Gabriela Prata

Dias, 2020-02-05 This book presents a comparative analysis of energy efficiency policies in developing countries Although there is a vast amount of literature available about renewable energy policy and implementation in the developing world energy efficiency tends to lack attention This book fills this lacuna by examining the current state of the field and scope for future improvements Drawing on a wide range of case studies including Brazil China and Chile the authors use a comparative approach to examine the policies and programmes being implemented looking at the existing legal frameworks and regulatory challenges By showcasing stories of success as well as barriers to energy efficiency they highlight the opportunities for increased energy access and efficiency and demonstrate how these opportunities may directly impact on climate change mitigation This volume will be a useful resource for scholars and practitioners with an interest in energy policy and efficiency climate change and international development energy issues in the developing world Mohan

Munasinghe, Robert J. Saunders, 1988 Lower oil prices are rising doubts about the underlying assumptions and ambitious energy programs of the last decade How and how hard do countries pursue the goal of energy efficiency in an uncertain energy market America's Commitment to Third World Development Cyrus Roberts Vance, 1978 National Energy

Congress. Senate. Committee on Energy and Natural Resources, 1991 National Energy Planning and Management in Developing Countries H. Neu, D. Bain, 1983-04-30 Lectures delivered at the Management Training Seminar held at the Joint Research Centre Ispra Italy May 3 14 1982 Global Energy Strategies James C. White, 2013-11-21 The world is getting warmer Among scientists concerned with global climate change this is the broad consensus How fast and by how much are questions which cannot be answered quantitatively but the probability of rising temperatures must be faced in a prudent manner there is enough certainty of change so that we must anticipate and prepare before irreparable damage is done to our world Even if it isn't going to be as bad as some people think the actions we propose will benefit the earth and give us a kind of insurance The root of the change is population growth and its attendant demand for energy While the developed world expects to hold future emissions relatively steady the developing countries where population growth is most rampant will expand the use of energy as they aspire to a better quality of life H greater energy use is inevitable it behooves us to produce that energy in the least objectionable manner and to produce it where the cost is lowest in dollars GNP and environmental change

Six Energy Policies To Save The Planet Neil A C Hirst, 2024-05-10 With a Foreword by Dr Fatih Birol Hirst provides a wide ranging account of international energy strategies designed to counter climate change He argues that six policies hold the key to addressing this global problem accelerating action on renewables and energy efficiency making bold investments in new technologies persuading the public to adapt taking firm regulatory action supporting the developing world and raising the level of global cooperation Six Energy Policies to Save the Planet takes stock of the situation today reviews the potential of available technologies and examines the interlocking roles of business public opinion and government It considers the geopolitics of climate change in particular the relations between rich and poor countries and between China and the West Additionally it outlines the perspectives of some of the key decision makers including an increasing number located in the developing world The final chapters assess the current state of international energy governance and propose reforms Encouraging us to understand underlying trends and significant levers for change this book is a topical and fresh insight into one of the most pressing issues we face today

Innovative Energy Strategies for CO2 Stabilization Robert G. Watts, 2002-07-11 The vast majority of the world's climate scientists believe that the build up of heat trapping CO<sub>2</sub> in the atmosphere will lead to global warming unless we burn less fossil fuels At the same time energy must be supplied in increasing amounts for the developing world to continue its growth This book discusses the feasibility of increasingly efficient energy use and the potential for supplying energy from sources that do not introduce CO<sub>2</sub> The book analyses the prospects for Earth based renewables solar wind biomass hydroelectricity geothermal and ocean energy It then discusses nuclear fission and fusion and the relatively new idea of harvesting solar energy on satellites or lunar bases It will be essential reading for all those interested in energy issues including engineers and physicists electrical mechanical chemical industrial environmental nuclear and industrial leaders and politicians It will also be used as a supplementary textbook on advanced courses on energy

Climate Change and Energy Policy L. Rosen, R. Glasser, 1992-05-01 The first conference of its kind explicitly designed to encourage the integration of the climate change community with the energy policy making and research communities The book looks at climate change on many levels including its economic impact and its effect on energy technologies Of interest to energy researchers and policy makers      National Energy Strategy United States. Congress. House. Committee on Science, Space, and Technology,1991      Energy Research Abstracts ,1982
