The State of the Environment in Asia The Japan Environmental Council, 2012-12-06 In December 1977 we published the first in this series of NGO oriented reports on Asia's environment Ajia Kankyo Hakusho 1997 98 This was published in English by Springer Verlag as The State of the Environment in Asia 1999 2000 Although only a few years have passed since then Asia has seen tumultuous changes in the political economic social environmental and other domains as well as a number of prominent trends that could be regarded as harbingers of the new century China for instance could henceforth decisively affect the evolution of environmental problems not only in Asia but across the entire globe Yet Chinese concern for and initiatives on pollution and environmental damage have increased more quickly than could have been anticipated just a few years ago And on Taiwan where a Democratic Progressive Party president was elected over the long ruling Nationalist Party an attorney who has cooperated with our pollution surveys for a decade Hsieh Chang ting became mayor of Taiwan's largest heavy and chemical industry city of Kaohsiung where he has begun a Green Revolution On the Korean Peninsula which has for many years endured the division of its people as well as political and military tensions there are the beginnings of a new North South dialog These changes are all welcome to those of us who wish to see new advances in environmental cooperation throughout Asia Nuclear Energy David Bodansky, 2007-06-25 This second edition represents an extensive revision of the first edition though the motivation for the book and the intended audiences as described in the previous preface remain the same The overall length has been increased substantially with revised or expanded discussions of a number of topics including Yucca Mountain repository plans new reactor designs health effects of radiation costs of electricity and dangers from terrorism and weapons proliferation The overall status of nuclear power has changed rather little over the past eight years Nuclear reactor construction remains at a very low ebb in much of the world with the exception of Asia while nuclear power's share of the electricity supply continues to be about 75% in France and 20% in the United States However there are signs of a heightened interest in considering possible nuclear growth In the late 1990s the U S Department of Energy began new programs to stimulate research and planning for future reactors and many candidate designs are now contending at least on paper to be the next generation leaders Outside the United States the commercial development of the Pebble Bed Modular Reactor is being pursued in South Africa a French German consortium has won an order from Finland for the long planned EPR European Pressurized Water Reactor and new reactors have been built or planned in Asia In an unanticipated positive development for nuclear energy the capacity factor of U S reactors has increased dramatically in recent years and most operating reactors now appear headed for 20 year license renewals The Routledge Handbook of Energy Security Benjamin K.
