Lammers, Allen Verhey, 1998-05-11 Collecting a wide range of contemporary and classical essays dealing with medical ethics this huge volume is the finest resource available for engaging the pressing problems posed by medical advances     Ending Aging Aubrey de Grey, Michael Rae, 2024-05-01 Ending Aging guides the reader through a maze of advances in molecular and cellular biology that could lead to anti aging therapies Dr Judy Illes Nature Nearly all scientists who study the biology of aging agree that we will someday be able to substantially slow down the aging process extending our productive youthful lives Dr Aubrey de Grey is perhaps the most bullish of all such researchers As has been reported in media outlets ranging from 60 Minutes to The New York Times Dr de Grey believes that the key biomedical technology required to eliminate aging derived debilitation and death entirely technology that would not only slow but periodically reverse age related physiological decay leaving us biologically young into an indefinite future is now within reach In Ending Aging Dr de Grey and his research assistant Michael Rae describe the details of this biotechnology They explain that the aging of the human body just like the aging of man made machines results from an accumulation of various types of damage As with man made machines this damage can periodically be repaired leading to indefinite extension of the machine s fully functional lifetime just as is routinely done with classic cars We already know what types of damage accumulate in the human body and we are moving rapidly toward the comprehensive development of technologies to remove that damage By demystifying aging and its postponement for the nonspecialist reader de Grey and Rae systematically dismantle the fatalist presumption that aging will forever defeat the efforts of medical science The authors explore the nitty gritty of how we age and posit an audacious blueprint for cheating the reaper Janet Cromley Los Angeles Times

Truly Human Enhancement Nicholas Agar, 2023-09-19 A nuanced discussion of human enhancement that argues for enhancement that does not significantly exceed what is currently possible for human beings The transformative potential of genetic and cybernetic technologies to enhance human capabilities is most often either rejected on moral and prudential grounds or hailed as the future salvation of humanity In this book Nicholas Agar offers a more nuanced view making a case for moderate human enhancement improvements to attributes and abilities that do not significantly exceed what is currently possible for human beings He argues against radical human enhancement or improvements that greatly exceed current human capabilities Agar explores notions of transformative change and motives for human enhancement distinguishes between the instrumental and intrinsic value of enhancements argues that too much enhancement undermines human identity considers the possibility of cognitively enhanced scientists and argues against radical life extension Making the case for moderate enhancement Agar argues that many objections to enhancement are better understood as directed at the degree of enhancement rather than enhancement itself Moderate human enhancement meets the requirement of truly human enhancement By radically enhancing human cognitive capabilities by contrast we may inadvertently create beings post persons with moral status higher than that of persons If we create beings more entitled to benefits and protections against harms than persons Agar writes this will be bad news for the unenhanced Moderate human enhancement offers a more appealing vision of the future and of our relationship to technology Old Age and Disease in Early Modern Medicine Daniel Schäfer,2015-10-06 This book takes a thematic look at the historical roots of the debate surrounding old age and disease

Planning Later Life Mark Schweda,Larissa Pfaller,Kai Brauer,Frank Adloff,Silke Schick Tanz,2017-07-06 This book examines the relevance of modern medicine and healthcare in shaping the lives of elderly persons and the practices and institutions of ageing societies Combining individual and social dimensions Planning Later Life discusses the ethical social and political consequences of increasing life expectancies and demographic change in the context of biomedicine and public health By focusing on the field of biomedicine and healthcare the authors engage readers in a dialogue on the ethical and social implications of recent trends in dementia research and care advance healthcare planning or the rise of anti ageing medicine and prevention Bringing together the largely separated debates of individualist bioethics on the one hand and public health ethics on the other the volume deliberately considers the entanglements of envisioning evaluating and controlling individual and societal futures So far the process of devising and exploring the various positive and negative visions and strategies related to later life has rarely been reflected systematically from a philosophical sociological and ethical point of view As such this book will be crucial to those working and studying in the life sciences the humanities and the social sciences particularly in the areas of bioethics social work gerontology and aging studies healthcare and social service sociology social policy and geography and population studies Challenges of Aging C.
