Education 2000 Paul Fisher, 1990      Designing Environments for Constructive Learning Thomas M. Duffy, Joost Lowyck, David H. Jonassen, 2012-12-06 The idea for this book grew out of a NATO Advanced Research Workshop held at the Catholic University at Leuven Belgium We are grateful to NATO for support in conducting this workshop and for support in the preparation of this book We are particularly grateful for their emphasis on designing the workshop to build collegiality They suggested that we hold the meeting in a small town and that we organize evening activities to keep the group together and to promote informal and extended discussions What sage advice The excitement grew over the three days as we shared understandings and enriched our perspectives Indeed there was even a proclaimed near conversion to a constructivist perspective from one colleague trained in traditional instructional design methods While we report this as a bit of a humorous anecdote it most clearly reflects the sense of excitement that developed We would also like to thank the staff at the Catholic University for their great support during the workshop Their efforts and their good cheer were important components in the success of the meeting In particular we would like to thank Jan Elen Catherine Vermunicht and Jef Vanden Branden Finally we would like to thank the personnel at Indiana University for their help in assembling this book Deborah Shaw prepared the index We thank her for the skill and speed with which she was able to work      Cross National Policies and Practices on Computers in Education Tjeerd Plomp, R.E. Anderson, Georgia Kontogiannopoulou-Polydorides, 2007-08-19 This book presents some of the results from the second stage of IEA's study of Computers in Education CompEd IEA the International Association for the Evaluation of Educational Achievement conducts international comparative studies focussing on educational achievement practices and policies in various countries and education systems around the world It has a Secretariat located in Amsterdam the Netherlands IEA studies have reported on a wide range of topics each contributing to a deeper understanding of educational processes The CompEd study is a project that sheds light on the way computers have been introduced in education and on how they are being used across the world today The study proceeded in two stages with data collected for stage 1 in 1989 and for stage 2 in 1992 Results from both stages have been published in a variety of publications This book reports about a special part of the study Student achievement and school processes come into being in the context of the structure and the policies of national or regional education systems The variety found in the CompEd results led us to ask how much might be explained by differences in these national or regional contexts That is the reason the CompEd study took the initiative to invite the countries participating in the study as well as some other countries that have had interesting developments in the domain of educational computers to write a chapter describing their policies and practices regarding computers in education      Specialisation and Choice in Urban Education Geoff Whitty, Tony Edwards, Sharon Gewirtz, 2022-05-29 First published in 1993 Specialisation and Choice in Urban Education explores how city technology colleges CTC have managed the task of selecting intakes representatives of their catchment areas and explore their impact on local schools From their announcements in 1986 CTC have been presented both as a new choice of school for the inner city and as pointing the way to a more diversified education system This account of their development uses interviews with key architects of the initiative to identify more clearly the objectives CTCs were designed to serve It then draws on interviews and observation in CTCs themselves to discover how far these schools are becoming centres of innovation in school management curriculum and approaches to teaching and learning Throughout the CTC policy is considered in the context of Government s broader political project to challenge welfarism and to encourage entrepreneurship competition and choice This book is an essential read for scholars and researchers of education policy sociology of education and education in general     The Unfinished Revolution John Abbott,Terry Ryan,2001-03-15 If you believe it is possible for communities schools parents and businesses to come together around helping all children become lifelong learners then read this book In The Unfinished Revolution authors John Abbott and Terry Ryan argue that the so called crisis in education is really a crisis in childhood and that the unit of change is not the school but rather the larger community Drawing on their experiences of working with schools community leaders researchers parents and business leaders in the United States the United Kingdom and Canada the authors show how current models of education based on ideas about learning from the industrial age cannot by themselves bring out the full potential of all children They maintain that the schools we have inherited from the industrial age are structured to develop a mass of students who at best are equipped with basic skills and the ability to follow orders but only a small cadre of creative lifelong learners To create learning environments that help all children take control of their own learning the authors propose a constructivist and apprentice based approach that takes full account of our current understanding about how humans actually learn They urge going with the grain of the brain as a way of breaking down today s highly partitioned system of education Abbott and Ryan make the case that communities have the power to help education blend into a seamless web in which learning opportunities permeate the entire culture This form of dynamic learning will not be seen as a system but rather as a way of life Learning will be something that we all recognize encourage and actively support through formal education community participation and the power of the connected world of information communication and technology A utopian vision No The authors describe societies undergoing a revolution in thinking and working that despite disruptions offers ways to cope with ongoing social political and economic changes This revolution is unfinished as long as education systems lag behind these larger transformations In this book the authors address that lag by charting a course across disciplines to connect learning to what happens outside the classroom ultimately producing lifelong learners who can take full advantage of today s increasingly open and dynamic societies Note This product listing is for the Adobe Acrobat PDF version of the book     Educational Reform Jordan T. Ville,2001 This book brings together the literature in a field which may define the 21st century Can economic and technological progress continue with educational systems which seem to answer to no one but themselves and which output graduates who can barely read and write and who have only the faintest clue how to use a map This bibliography provides access via Title Author and Subject Indexes Contents Educational Accountability Educational Change Educational Equalisation Educational Leadership Educational Planning Educational Indicates Overschooled but Undereducated John Abbott,2010-06-01 Based on the premise that education has to be about much more than intellectual development this book calls for the transformation of the education system Teacher Education: Curriculum and change David Hartley,Maurice Whitehead,2006 New Information Technology in Education: United Kingdom Commission of the European Communities,1992 New Information Technology in Education in the United Kingdom Jenny Brown,Jon Coupland,Martin Davies,1993 Handbook of Latinos and Education Juan Sánchez Muñoz,Enrique G. Walsh, 2012-11-12 Education Reform and Social Change is about addressing and changing the structures policies and practices of schools that differentially advantage white middle class native English speakers over students of color for whom English may be a second or additional language It is also about helping people to think critically about what it is schools do and to consider more democratic participatory and equitable approaches The chapters in the text provide first hand documentation of the voices struggles and visions of students parent activists advocates attorneys and educators involved in educational and social change processes It chronicles real life efforts of people challenging the status quo and working to build a more participatory equitable and transformative future The goal of this book is twofold first to consider the structures policies and practices that shape and limit educational change and learning and teaching and second to document grassroots collaborative and creative efforts to change them It offers a critical framework both for conceptualizing and for actualizing educational change Organized into four sections this book provides a theoretical and practical framework for thinking about educational reform and social change one that moves from the broader structural concerns that are embedded in policy to case studies that document activism and collaborative efforts to change school city and state policies to classroom based directions and initiatives and to the construction of personal and collective visions for a more democratic equitable and just education Each section includes an overview of the chapters necessary background information to help the reader contextualize what follows and guiding questions to encourage reflective thought and engagement with the text and to invite personal linkages Two resource sections are included at the end of the volume Radical Educational Reform Critical Pedagogy and Multicultural Education Selected Readings and Resources and National Organization Networks and Resources with a Critical Perspective Transformative Research and Higher Education Azril Bacal Roij, 2022-03-08 Providing a critical look at how it is possible for institutions of higher education to go beyond the institutional constraints that plague the neo liberal university the authors of this volume explore the powerful role of transformative university based research and education
