Higher Education in the Gulf States Christopher Davidson,Peter Mackenzie Smith,2012-08-01 Nowhere in the world is university education expanding as rapidly as in the six member state of the Gulf Cooperation Council In two generations the region has gone from having the Middle East s least educated population to boasting a younger generation whose educational achievements are approaching Organisation for Economic Co operation and Development OECD standards This unique study with contributions by key decision makers charts this dramatic development exploring the challenges faced and placing accomplishments within the social economic and political context of the region

The Development of Higher Education in the United Arab Emirates Daniel Kirk,2010-03-10 The UAE sits astride an uncomfortable dilemma in terms of national development and international profile It seeks to be a regional and global power both economically and politically and to achieve this it needs to diversify and become less reliant on a workforce that is made up predominantly of expatriates many of whom are employed because they have a level of education unavailable among the general citizenry Alongside a rapid growth in public services and private commerce education is a stated national priority with the Ministry of Education setting out in its vision that education should achieve enduring development for the community The UAE higher education sector is growing at an astonishing rate However the apparent dilemma results from the call for a rapid growth in educational provision alongside the desire to produce a functioning and accessible education system in a relatively short time frame The UAE is a consumer of educational practice a nation that has a history of buying in the educational models and expertise it requires as opposed to the lengthier but possibly better suited process of building an indigenous education system from the ground up Developing a truly indigenous and new system to fit the needs of neophyte states although laborious expensive and problematic does allow a nation to mold specifically the needs of the country with the educational systems developed However the UAE through the model of borrowing systems and expertise was able to kick start the development of education in the country greatly decreasing the time needed to establish formal educational structures Such a situation may open up questions as to the suitability and efficacy of a predominantly imported educational provision for the indigenous population The UAE as a relatively new and emerging economy has the funds and support of the national leadership to actively pursue and seek educational systems and practices that will advance development and competitiveness To exam how globalized structures influence education in the UAE and beyond there needs to be an understanding and awareness of the context in which the education sector functions today As global economic forces and the labor needs of societies change then accountability control and governance of education becomes a contested area of public policy However what can be seen is that education is gaining in prominence in the public policy arena with governments and politicians realizing that in order to be globally competitive education must produce a skilled and efficient national workforce placing education firmly in the realm of human capital theory and policy

Aspects of Education in the Middle East and Africa Colin Brock,Lila Zia Levers,2007-05-07

The chapters in this volume do not represent the whole of the Middle East and North Africa as such a collection would have been too large for one volume Rather the selection here is intended to present different perspectives on a range of educational issues relevant to a particular focus or country or common to a number of countries in the area There is no overarching theme beyond that which is common to most of the countries in this area such as modernity versus tradition the spread of education effecting sociological changes most pronounced in the rural and tribal areas the changing fortunes and roles of women the aspiration and expectation of youth and the state having become the major player in providing education These are all shared by most of the countries represented here
