Educating the Gendered Citizen Madeleine Arnot, 2009 Globalisation and global human rights are the two major forces in the twenty first century which are likely to shape the sort of learner citizen created by the educational system Schools will be expected to prepare young men and women for national as well as global citizenship Male and female citizens will need to adapt to new social conditions only some of which will encourage gender equality This book offers a unique introduction to the contribution that sociological research on the education of the citizen can make to these national and global debates It brings together for the first time a selection of influential new and previously published papers by Madeleine Arnot on the theme of gender education and citizenship It describes feminist challenges to liberal democracy the gendered construction of the good citizen and citizenship education it explores the implications of social change for the learner citizen and offers alternative gender sensitive models of global citizenship education Reaching right to the heart of current debates the chapters focus on feminist democratic values in education teachers constructions of the gendered citizen European languages of citizenship the inclusion of women's rights into English citizenship textbooks gender struggles for equality in school pedagogy and curriculum the implications of personalised learning for the individualised learner citizen globalisation and the construction of a global ethic for citizenship education It will be an invaluable text for all those interested in nationalism simply a product of Kemalist propaganda from the early Turkish Republic or an inevitable consequence of a firm and developing Turkish identity How do the politics of nationalism and identity limit Turkey's progression towards a fuller more institutionalised democracy Turkish citizenship is a vital aspect of today's Republic and yet it has long been defined only through legal framework neglecting its civil political and social implications Here Basak Ince seeks to rectify this examining the identity facets of citizenship and how this relates to nationalism democracy and political participation in the modern Turkish republic By tracing the development of the citizenship from the initial founding of the Republic to the immediate post World War II period and from the military interventions of the 1960s 1970s and 1980s to the present day she offers in depth analysis of the interaction of state and society in modern Turkey which holds wider implications for the study of the Middle East

Religion in the Primary School Peter Hemming, 2015-02-20 Religion and its relationship to schooling is an issue that has become more and more topical in recent years In many countries developments such as the diversification of state school sectors concerns about social cohesion between ethnic and religious groups and debates about national identity and values have raised old and new questions about the role of religion in education Whilst the significance of this issue has been reflected in renewed interest from the academic community much of this work has continued to be based around theoretical or pedagogical debates and stances rather than evidence based empirical research This book aims to address this gap by exploring the social and political role of religion in the context of the primary school Drawing on original ethnographic research with a child centred orientation comparisons are drawn between Community and Roman Catholic primary schools situated within a multi faith urban area in the UK In doing so the study explores a number of ways in which religion has the potential to contribute to everyday school life including through school ethos and values inter pupil relations community cohesion and social identity and difference At the centre of the analysis are two key sociological debates about the significance of religion in late modern societies The first is concerned with the place of religion in public life and the influence of secularisation and post secularism on the relationship between religion and schooling The second relates to the increasingly multi faith nature of many national populations and the implications for religious citizenship in educational settings Religion in the Primary School will be a useful resource for academics researchers and students as a key addition to existing knowledge in the disciplines of education sociology and human geography It will also be of value to both policy makers and educationalists interested in the role of religion in schools and the implications for the wider community and society in a range of national contexts
